War Department Budget Calls For Increased Funds

FIGURES BY HOOVER ARE CHALLENGED

Message by President Said Budget Provided Decrease of $18,000,000
OTHER CLAIMS MADE
Critics Assert Study Made Shows Appropriation Is Increased $5,000,000

(Copyright, 1932, by United Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Examination of the new administration budget has led to the conclusion in some quarters that more money is being asked for the military activities of the war department during the coming year than was appropriated for comparable items this year.
In his budget message, President Hoover said the budget provided for a decrease of $18,215,000 in war department military appropriations. Others who have made a close study of the estimates assert their calculations show an increase of more than $5,000,000.
The differences arise in selecting the comparable items for the two years. Those who challenge Mr. Hoover's assertion of reduction in estimates argue that the comparison is drawn by padding last year's column with non-recurring items, some of which were part of the emergency relief program and were not included in the army bill.
When the war department appropriation bill is finally drafted and presented to the house it is probable this question will be argued out. Critics of the administration economy program say it takes advantage of non-recurring items.

FRENCH CABINET TO ASK FOR NEW VOTE

PARIS, Dec. 29.—(UP)—The government of Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour faced possible overthrow in the senate today by asking a vote of confidence on a 5,000,000 franc treasury bond issue.
He also entered hazardous debate in the chamber of deputies on French anticipation in the League of Nations loan to Austria.
The premier decided not to stake the government's existence on the chamber vote, but he appeared certain of critical hostility.
The premier and Finance Minister Henry Cheron led the government's fight for France's $12,000,000 share of the loan on the ground that France's signature to the Lausanne accords must be honored.

CONTRACT LET
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(UP)—The West Slope Construction company of Chicago, today has let the contract to construct dam No. 1 in San Gabriel canyon, one of the largest flood control dams in Southern California. Its bid of $8,600,527 was accepted by the county board of supervisors, which ordered construction work to proceed immediately. The Chicago concern had submitted the lowest of 10 bids.

WHAT CIVIL WAR GENERAL WAS KNOWN AS "FIGHTING JOE"?

WHAT IS THE NAME OF THIS MEDAL?

Meteor Falls So Close Man Feels Heat

LURAY, Va., Dec. 29.—(UP)—Esra Dyer's story of the meteorite that fell so close to him that he could feel its heat was the talk of the town today.
Dyer, just back from a hunting trip in Shenandoah National park says the meteor fell with a whizzing sound and showered "sparks as big as a half dollar" around him.
He avers one of his dogs was badly frightened and it left the trail of a "coon" it had been following and fled into the woods. The dog has not been seen since. Dyer believes it was frightened to death.

SOUTH AMERICAN NATIONS FACE BLOODY BATTLE

Three Countries Concentrate Forces on Amazon in War for Port
PARA, Brazil, Dec. 29.—(UP)—War forces of three South American nations were being concentrated today on the mighty Amazon, with a bloody conflict in prospect for possession of Leticia, a tiny port surrounded by dense, tropical jungles.
The customary quiet of Para just below the equator, at the hottest season of the year was disturbed by arrival in the harbor here of half a dozen Colombian vessels bearing part of the expeditionary force which will attempt to take Leticia from Peruvians.
The Peruvian government concentrated its forces at Iquitos, the main Peruvian port on the Amazon, which is 2700 miles up the Amazon.
Peru was reported to have several naval launches and other craft near Leticia, on the Amazon and the Putumayo, and to have brought airplanes from Lima to Iquitos, Brazil, determined to guard her neutrality in the impending conflict, is sending land, sea, and air forces to Tabatinga, five miles from Leticia.
The western concentration of the forces is expected to begin today.

HOUSE MEMBERS IN REBELLIOUS MOOD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Members of the house are ripe for a nice rebellion over their own holiday week, but Speaker Garner is cracking the whip over them so smartly that they can't do anything about it.
There were mutterings of discontent last Friday night when Garner rapped his gavel and warned the house it must resume business on Tuesday, although congressional holiday recesses customarily extend 10 days or more. Like a mutinous crew on the ship of state, members gathered in the cloakrooms, grumbling that the speaker was a "slave driver." The republicans particularly did not like the idea of being forced by democratic leaders to stay in Washington.

HENRY INDICTED BY L.A. GRAND JURYMEN

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(UP)—A secret indictment returned today by the county grand jury charged Leslie B. Henry, prominent broker and Pasadena civic leader, with 16 counts of grand theft and eight counts of forgery in connection with his management of the securities of Mrs. Charlotte Shelby.
The indictment was returned before Superior Judge B. Rey Schauer, who fixed bail at $25,000 and issued a bench warrant for Henry's arrest.
Harold Judson, counsel for the broker, said, however, that he would surrender Henry today to the sheriff's fugitive detail in whose hands the warrant was delivered.

NEW ULTIMATUM TO BRITISH GOVERNMENT SENT BY GANDHI

Scientists Laud, Attack Technocracy

New Methods of Controlling Industry Discussed at Atlantic City
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 29.—The critical eye of science was focused today on the world economic crisis as the American Association for the Advancement of Science discussed new methods of planning and controlling industry, business and employment, including the much-talked-of Technocracy.
Theoretical remedies for present world conditions were presented by an array of engineers and industrial executives.
Among those who advanced opinions and results of research were Gerard Swope of the General Electric Co.; Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors; Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Dugald C. Jackson, of M. I. T.; Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale; Dr. Walter Reuther, of Columbia university, and Prof. James W. Angell, of Columbia. The theories advanced included:
1. Stabilization of the dollar in relation to price can stabilize trade and employment.

TURKISH WORD 'TANRI' TO SUPPLANT THAT OF 'ALLAH' DURING MOHAMMEDAN FEAST

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 29.—(UP)—The fate of President Mustafa Kemal's most daring reform which changed the name of "Allah" to "Tanri" will be known tonight when the thin, silver line of the new moon appears in the eastern sky.
The moon's appearance will be the signal marking the beginning of the Mohammedan fast of Ramadan. That fast observance will call for prayer. "Tanri," a Turkish word, has been ordered substituted for the Arabic "Allah," with prayers and chants set to modern music.
"Allah Ekber!" the ancient call of the Mohammedan priests must become "Tanri Uluduri!" Priests and people shall pray in Turkish instead of Arabic. The "strong man" of Turkey decided. Already several rebellious Muezzins, prayer chanters, are in jail for refusing to call Allah by his Turkish name.
New prayer rugs were distributed to Istanbul's 400 mosques for the feast of Ramadan. Newly trained prayer chanters are ready to fill in if the elders refuse to abandon Arabic, or plead insufficient time to have learned Turkish.
Tonight, if the prayer calls that go out from the tops of the minarets are in the new Turkish language, Mustafa Kemal will be satisfied. He already has westernized the clothing, alphabet, and social customs of his people. But if the wise doctors of Islam exert the worshiping multitude in Arabic, as they have done for centuries, the president will expect serious trouble for his plans.

JUDD CASE IS HOOVER CRUISE OPENED AGAIN IS SPEEDED UP BY GRAND JURY THIS MORNING

Trunk Murderess Tells Her Story and New Indictments Expected
PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 29.—(UP)—The Maricopa county grand jury was expected today to return one or more indictments in the suddenly reopened investigation of the murders of Annes Ann Lavelle and Hedvig Samuelson, for the first of which Winnie Ruth Judd is sentenced to die.
Forecasts of new indictments were predicted upon the extensive hearing the grand jury accorded the condemned woman and upon its implied assurance it would resume the investigation today.
Although the utmost secrecy surrounded the grand jurors' actions, reports persisted they were interested in ascertaining if one or more persons were with Mrs. Judd when she allegedly dismembered the bodies of her two friends and shipped them in her luggage to Los Angeles.

STATE INSURANCE HEAD IS ENJOINED

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(UP)—State Insurance Commissioner E. Forrest Mitchell was temporarily enjoined from interference with business activities of the Benjamin Franklin Bond & Indemnity corporation, under provisions of a court of appeals ruling on file today.
The district court ruled the temporary injunction would apply until a hearing is held January 9, and was sustained in superior court. The company has appealed to the higher court with three writs, seeking to vacate the suspension order.
CARMEL, Calif., Dec. 29.—(UP)—If figures Gov. James Rolph submits today are "convincing," it is probable that California will receive a substantial loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, A. W. McMillan, field representative to the RFC, said here.
McMillan planned to fly to Sacramento today to confer with the governor on the state's application for a loan to be used for relief purposes.
He indicated, however, that Rolph's plan to ask for a $20,000,000 loan would have to be trimmed somewhat.

FATHER FREED IN SLAYING OF SON

FRESNO, Calif., Dec. 29.—(UP)—Murder charges against John Domke, 63-year-old Fresno man, today were dismissed on recommendation of the district attorney.
He explained that available evidence would not warrant a conviction.
Domke shot his son with an old-fashioned muzzle-loading pistol Dec. 22 when the youth assertedly attacked him with a butcher knife. They had quarreled, Domke told police, because the youth had spoken harshly to his mother.

New Fast Is Threatened In January

Mahatma Demands Untouchables Be Permitted to Enter Temples
POONA, India, Dec. 29.—(UP)—The Mahatma M. K. Gandhi today laid down a new ultimatum to the British government demanding legislation to permit the down-trodden untouchables of India to enter the temples from which they have been barred for centuries.
If the government refuses, Gandhi told the United Press correspondent, he will begin a new fast in mid-January.

PRISONERS WILL BE RELEASED ON JAN. 1
LONDON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Thousands of political prisoners in India's jails, including the Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, are practically certain of release on New Year day, the Daily Herald said today.
Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India, is convinced that the "jail delivery" is essential to secure a fair hearing in India of Great Britain's proposals for an Indian federation, the Herald said.

MARY PICKFORD IS INJURED AT STUDIO

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Mary Pickford of motion picture fame, nursed a badly bruised forehead and shoulder today but apparently no other ill effects from having been knocked unconscious when felled by a 150 pound studio lamp while rehearsing before the camera.
The actress was resting between scenes while the electricians moved lights around the set. On her left was Frances Marion, scenario writer, and on her right, her husband, Douglas Fairbanks. Light cables became entangled with the microphone boom and a huge "rifle" light on an eight-foot standard. The light toppled over, pinning the actress unconscious on the floor.

TRUSTEE REMOVED BY U. S. REFEREE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Because a United States trustee in bankruptcy assertedly paid tribute to cleaners and dyers racketeers, he had been removed from his position today by Rupert B. Turnbull, United States bankruptcy referee.
Removal of Leonard Brown as trustee for the United Cleaners and Dyers Corp. was ordered by Turnbull after Brown was said to have admitted he paid $200 a month to an organization known as the Cleaners and Dyers association, assertedly under threats that they would blow up the plant for which he was trustee.
The dismissal order was filed in district court, and a meeting of creditors of the firm is to be called and a new trustee named, Turnbull said.

S. A. WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Inez Hall, 65, of 1341 South Barton street, Santa Ana, was killed in a collision between two automobiles in Beverly Hills last night, according to word received here today.
Mrs. Hall was reported to have been riding with Frank V. Smith when she fell to the pavement as a door of the automobile opened after a collision with a car driven by William J. Steinbrink of Los Angeles.

INJURED

JAFSIE CLAIMS RECEIPT GIVEN HIM BY "JOHN"

New Version of Ransom in Lindbergh Case Revealed by J. F. Condon
NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(UP)—A new version of the $50,000 ransom swindle in the Lindbergh kidnapping case has been revealed by Dr. John F. Condon, "Jafsie" of the want ads, who disclosed that the supposed abductor gave him a receipt for the money.
Dr. Condon made an oral statement correcting some published stories of how he paid the money in a vain attempt to ransom the son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh last April after viewing two men held for possible identification as suspects. He said the money was not thrown over a cemetery wall in the Bronx, as some reported.
"The $50,000," Dr. Condon said, "was handed to a man named 'John' in a box which had been constructed under my personal supervision."
Dr. Condon said he demanded a receipt from 'John' before handing him the money. "He said he would get one," Dr. Condon continued, "and withdrew while I went back to Colonel Lindbergh's car. Five minutes later I met 'John' at the same point. He handed me the receipt and I gave him the $50,000."

WOULD DIVERT GAS TAXES FOR RELIEF

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Dec. 29.—(UP)—Diversion of $5,500,000 from the state gasoline tax fund to relieve the general fund deficit this biennium as well as by a similar amount for the next two year period loomed as a possibility today. Robert A. Vandergrift, state director of finance, admitted he was "considering" the introduction of an emergency measure that would seek relief from the gasoline tax fund.
The director long has indicated he would seek diversion of $5,500,000 for payment of interest on old highway bonds for the next biennium, but until now there had been no plan to interfere with gas taxes for the current biennium.

FOUR WRIGHT ACT VIOLATORS FREED

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Four men and a woman were freed today, convicted of the obsolete felony of selling liquor in California.
The releases were ordered after the appellate department of the superior court held that the Wright act became invalid at midnight December 18.
Appellate judges said all appeals from convictions after that date would be granted, and municipal judges said pending cases would be dismissed.
The appellate court said the act had been repealed "without a saving clause," making a dead letter of the statute.
The prisoners who won appeals were Florence Brown, William Zeron, Thomas Jurand, Edward Holts and Steve Carpenter.

POWERS TO REORGANIZE ARE URGED

Plan for Blanket Grant to Roosevelt to Be Rushed Through Congress
SENATE WILL AGREE
Speaker Garner and Chairman of Committee Confer to Put Plan Over
WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—A proposal to give President-elect Roosevelt wide powers to reorganize the federal government on an economy basis will be rushed through the present congress, according to plans today of house and senate Democratic leaders.
Speaker of the House Garner said he hoped the present session would "see proper to grant very broad powers for consolidation and elimination" of government bureaus.
Chairman Byrnes of the house appropriations committee later revealed that he had been in conference with senate leaders, and that the move would be made with the united support of the Democratic organization.
Majority House Leader Rainey, candidate for the next speakership, advocated the plan as one method of budget balancing. It immediately received the approval

CONTROLLER WILL ISSUE BANK CALL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—A national bank call will be issued tomorrow or Saturday in accordance with regulations which require three reports annually on the condition of national banks.
Two bank calls have been issued by the comptroller of the currency this year, in June and September, and the third must be made before the end of the year.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

BEVERLY HILLS, Dec. 29. (To the Editor of The Register: Mr. Hoover has gone south fishing. And from what I read in the papers the Democrats are planning for him, I believe I would just keep right on fishing. I have always believed he made a mistake by not stepping out and turning the whole thing over to 'em on December 1. There wasn't a chance of him and them agreeing on anything. It would have been a great big thing to have done. Everybody is against the "lame duck" and this is the last one anyhow. That would have given him an excellent excuse. They couldn't have accused him of quitting. Work it like President Wilson was going to. There would have been enough "lame ducks" followed his example that we would now be seeing what plans the Democrats had. As it is now we have two more months of loggerheading and an extra session of Congress. I would even leave 'em now and say "Boys, it looks easy, maybe you can fix everything before March 4." The Democrats would have to dig up some schemes mighty fast. Mr. Hoover would come out sitting mighty pretty. There wouldn't be a Republican on the Potomac to lay anything onto, as it now is this is just a grudge Congress; "Where can we lay the blame on Congress?" Yours, WILL ROGERS.

Grand Jury Indictments Are Filed Against Four

ACTION TAKEN TO KEEP CASES BEFORE COURT

Four open indictments charging crimes dating back as far as 1929 were returned before President Judge G. K. Scofield, late yesterday by the Orange county grand jury. The indictments were for offenses upon which the statute of limitations would soon expire.

An indictment was returned against Albert B. Clark, charging him with bigamy in connection with his marriage, December 21, 1929, to Edythe Nichols. Other indictments were: Marella Villa, who escaped from a county road gang under Deputy F. R. Grafton, March 26, 1930; Michael Rodriguez, escaped from a county road gang, August 4, 1930, and Benwick W. McCammon, accused of the burglary of the A. H. Neale home at Dana Point, September 8, 1930. McCammon was arrested in connection with the burglary of the Neale home and taken into superior court where he entered a plea of not guilty to the charge. He was vouched for by members of the Huntington Beach police department where he was employed at the time of the robbery, and released on his own recognizance. Shortly before the date of his trial McCammon is said to have gone into court and changed his plea to guilty and filed a petition for probation. He was allowed to remain at liberty on his own recognizance and disappeared before the date set for his probation hearing. It is said that McCammon fled after probation department officials had obtained his record from the state of Washington showing that he had been arrested several times prior to coming to California on similar charges and had served sentences for the offenses.

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman pointed out this morning that the statute of limitations has no effect on grand jury indictments and that they are never outlived.

Foreign War Vets Will Give Dance

Ernest L. Kellogg post and auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will stage a New Year's benefit dance Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Rainbow Dance hall for the benefit of unemployed veterans. It was announced today, Gilbert's orchestra will furnish the music.

Permit Issued For New House

Builder's permit for the erection of a new home and garage at 1111 North Bristol street, was issued yesterday to H. H. Fairfield, of 212 West Third street, who will construct a one story frame and stucco building, at a cost of $2500.

Fairfield, who also is a contractor, will build his own home.

JUDD CASE IS BLANKET GRANT OPENED AGAIN FOR ROOSEVELT BY GRAND JURY BEING PLANNED

From Los Angeles came the disclosure from one of her attorneys that Mrs. Judd probably had implicated a prominent Phoenix business man in describing how she had disposed of the bodies.

"I believe Winnie is telling a true story of what happened," Attorney Arthur Verge said. "Whether it will mitigate her case remains to be seen. I doubt seriously that anyone will be convicted as an accomplice."

Declaring his client a few days ago had professed both to himself and Sheriff J. R. McFadden of Phoenix a desire to go before the grand jury, the Los Angeles attorney said she again insisted she shot the two women in self-defense.

"She told me she was alone with the two girls at the time of the shooting," Verge continued. "At first this man entered and they worked over one of the girls, believing she was still alive. When it was apparent both were dead, the man told Winnie to leave and he would arrange things for her. Winnie was instructed to return the next day and get the trunks in which the bodies were pinned. She found the body of Miss Samuels had been dissected, and placed it in a smaller trunk. Then she had the luggage sent to Los Angeles."

Marie E. Wright Called By Death

Following an illness of several weeks' duration, Mrs. Marie E. Wright, 32, resident of Santa Ana for the past 11 years, passed away yesterday at the family home, 201 West Seventeenth street. She was a member of the Eastern Star.

Funeral services will be held at a date to be announced later by the Smith and Tutill Funeral home.

Chairman Byrns of the appropriations committee. Rainey said such a congressional grant might eliminate the necessity for any type of new tax bill, other than a beer tax and a continuation of present excises.

"The president-elect ought to be authorized to effect economies through merging bureaus and eliminating positions," Rainey said. "When that happens, he added, 'we might get along' without new revenue legislation."

Byrns, joining Rainey, said he had come to the conclusion that congress is unable to effect a real economical reorganization of the government while the chief executive may accomplish substantial savings.

The plan, while tentative, contemplated giving Roosevelt much broader powers of reorganization than were accorded President Hoover at the last session. There was some possibility a new blanket authority would be given the president at the short session, with the thought that Roosevelt could take advantage of it after his inauguration, but it was considered more likely that the matter would go over to a special session of the 73rd congress.

Rainey coupled with his proposal a bitter attack on lobbies which, he said, were largely responsible for wrecking economy plans.

"The government is controlled by organized minorities," he declared. Rainey said the present short session would accomplish "all the economies the Republicans will let us."

12,000 VOTERS REQUIRED TO RE-REGISTER

Orange county's registered vote of approximately 62,000 will be cut to approximately 50,000 within a few days when County Clerk J. M. Backs complete the task of striking from the list those voters who failed to vote at either the primary or general elections this year.

Backs said this morning that there are nearly 12,000 voters who did not vote at either of the two elections and therefore have forfeited their rights to vote until they have re-registered. The other 50,000 voters who did exercise their ballot franchise will not be required, under the present election law, to re-register until they fail to vote at both major elections which occur every bi-centennium.

Backs has almost completed the task of checking the list of registered voters under the new permanent registration law. Under this statute failure to exercise the vote franchise cancels the privilege until the voter again registers.

This automatically removes from the rolls, every two years, all voters who have died, moved away from the city of registration or, through lack of interest in governmental affairs, neglected to vote at one of the two major elections.

before the effect of price-change is felt on unemployment, but the connection is plain enough.

Price stability means trade and, so, employment stability."

Doctor Rautenstrauch of the industrial engineering department of Columbia related the researches being conducted by "technocracy," a group under the direction of Howard Scott, who is given credit for producing the "theory of energy determinants."

Machinery has displayed and outstripped human labor, Doctor Rautenstrauch declared to a point where machinery is causing eternal change in the socio-industrial mechanism of America. He pointed out that "technocracy" would use energy units expended in production as the measure of production and distribution, in order to control economic and social processes.

Kettering in disputing the claims of "technocracy" asserted: "The only thing I have to say is that I wish I had some of its sponsors as my competitors in the automotive industry."

Says Its Nonsense Kettering said that aims of the "technocrats" to produce automobiles good for 50 years are "nonsensical," inasmuch as depreciation in style and model—a human consideration—would make such a machine worthless in 10 years. He said:

"Things deteriorate in proportion as we advance mentally. America is the victim of under-circulation, not over-production, Kettering said in touching on unemployment."

Professor Jackson discussing the "mechanization" of America declared:

"Those who allege the general introduction of machinery has been the cause of unfair distribution of wealth and instability of employment have failed to observe all the facts and relationships."

Mr. Swope and Royal Meek, of the Connecticut commission on old age pensions, advocated the "five-year-plan" for production and distribution and employment by co-operation of unions and executives with the government in controlling finance, production and sale of commodities.

E. J. Working, senior agricultural economist at Washington, discussed agriculture in relation to the crisis. Doctor Compton advocated planning of public works and compulsory anti-unemployment insurance of about 4 per cent for each sales-dollar.

SOUTH AMERICA NATIONS FACE BLOODY BATTLE

Colombian troops was at Cauca, northwest of Leticia, on the Putumayo. Colombia was reported to have ordered fighting and bombing airplanes from the United States.

The local concentration of Colombian vessels included the transport Boyaca, formerly the American merchantman Bridgetown, with 37 soldiers and a crew of 38. There also were 27 passengers aboard enroute to the Amazonian frontier, and a cargo of war materials. The Boyaca had the Colombian gunboat Pechincha in tow. It carried a crew of 19, commanded by Capt. Bertram Taylor, an American.

The remainder of the Colombian force included the Cordoba, formerly a French transport, the gunboat Mosquera, and two tugs. Several coast guard vessels were reported enroute here.

The 25th Brazilian regiment was in port, aboard the transports Salles and Campos. The regiment will continue up river in a day or two. The first naval division, consisting of the cruiser Rio Grande, two destroyers and three torpedo boats, the Ploughy, Serapi, and Matto Grosso, has been ordered to the frontier. Six bombing planes will accompany the division. The troop ships were anchored in Para harbor, the most important port in northeastern Brazil, less than two degrees below the equator.

Leticia was almost deserted after the rubber market collapsed. Peruvian irregulars seized it Sept. 1, imprisoned Colombian authorities, confiscated the customs and took charge of public buildings.

The Colombian authorities were released later and made their way into Brazilian territory at Tabatinga. But the Peruvian government refused to oust the forces occupying Leticia. It claimed the seizure was the result of "national aspirations" of the natives of the Peruvian province Loreto, who want Leticia reincorporated into Peruvian territory.

JUSTICE MORRISON POSTPONES HEARING

The case of Leo DeSota, Frank Medina and Roy D. LaMarr, charged with highway robbery and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder, was continued in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court today until January 3.

The three are charged with holding up and beating Henry "Bill" Mayes, Westminster barber, on West First street on the night of December 11.

Mayes received a broken jaw and other injuries about the head. The continuance was made at the request of Maxwell Burke, attorney for Medina, who could not be in court today.

CLAIM HOOVER FIGURES ARE NOT CORRECT

ring items without contracting the permanent bureau machinery. Items which critics of the administration say should be taken out of the last year's column in the comparative tables are these:

Item in Garner-Wagner emergency construction act, $15,164,000. Non-recurring housing program, $2,250,000.

Savings under the emergency economy act of 1932, $10,326,794. Reduced subsistence and rental allowances under executive order, 1932, $1,277,988.

Total, $29,018,782. This would leave the military appropriations for last year at $275,645,242.

Comparable estimate of appropriations asked for the coming year total $277,730,841.

This leaves the amount requested for the coming year $2,085,599 more than was appropriated last year.

In addition, administration critics would add to the amount sought for the coming year a carry over of $2,000,000 authorized last year for purchase of airplanes up to July, 1934, covering the entire coming fiscal year. This would bring the difference up to $5,085,599.

Decreases Hoover, in addition to curtailed housing construction, consisted chiefly of a reduction of $3,500,000 for the national guard and $1,592,000 for citizens military training camps. Increases of $4,483,000 for subsistence and $1,243,000 for transportation were listed.

HOOVER CRUISE IS SPEEDED UP THIS MORNING

He is hoping to get his first real fishing of the cruise off Palm Beach. He really hasn't had much opportunity yet and that is why we have proceeded with all possible speed."

Wednesday the Sequoia made its first night run, not tying up at Sebastian Inlet until some time after dark. The yacht had gone 140 miles, the longest run since the party left Savannah, Ga., Saturday.

Harry S. Guggenheim, United States ambassador to Cuba, is expected to see President Hoover while here. Guggenheim is flying up from Havana.

It was insisted that the ambassador's visit was "purely informal and without political or economic significance. The president's course had led him through some of the least known but most remarkable country, rich in its early American history."

JAFSIE CLAIMS RECEIPT GIVEN HIM BY "JOHN"

I gave the receipt to Colonel Lindbergh."

Dr. Condon explained he had not made public the episode before because he had promised police not to discuss it, but he had been prompted to do so now "because I have been placed in an unfavorable position before the public."

The two men Dr. Condon viewed were Hollister Demo, unemployed World War veteran, Mariners Harbor, S. I., and John Miller, Jersey City, N. J. Neither was recognized by him.

Demo, voluntarily held for two days, returned to his home last night, completely exonerated of any suspicion in connection with the case, and with a $5 gift from police. Miller, arrested at the request of New York detectives, was held for a hearing Saturday on a disorderly conduct charge. No information as to why Miller was considered a suspect was divulged.

FINANCIAL TRADE-WINDS

The trade-wind of the Indian Ocean blows six months northeast and six months southwest. Old-time sailing captains knew and valued its dependability. For, day after day and week after week, it sent their ships bowling smoothly and steadily along.

In the financial world, too, are powerful forces of progress, as constant as the winds of the Indian Ocean. And among these forces none is more dependable than that which, since 1889, has forwarded Pacific States Savings' customers on their financial voyage.

The fundamental human need for shelter is the force back of the security and the steady yield afforded by Pacific States Savings. Through thousands of well chosen, well diversified loans on homes, this force is harnessed to provide security and steady yield to the funds entrusted to us.

EMBEZZLEMENT TANGLE LEAVES OWNERS IN HOLE

Taxpayers in the city of Orange today are facing the possibility of having to pay city taxes twice over periods extending as far back as 1928, because of misappropriation of city funds by former City Clerk Paul Clark. Clark now is serving a sentence in San Quentin prison for embezzlement of city tax money.

The additional embezzlement of city funds, above the $2300 to which he pleaded guilty several months ago when his shortage was first uncovered, was discovered when property owners received their 1932-33 tax bills with the notice stamped on them that the property had been sold to the state for taxes.

Twenty-five parcels of property were involved and in one of the groups a total of $1200 is said to be involved.

The question as to whether the city government will stand the loss through the former official's peculations or whether it will have to be borne by the individual taxpayers probably will be settled in court.

Demand Filed
Mrs. Angeline Courtney, through attorneys F. J. Reynolds and F. J. Reynolds and Roy W. Shafer, all of Santa Ana, has filed a formal demand on the city of Orange for a redemption certificate on her property, showing that the taxes have been paid. According to her tax bill received recently, the property had been sold to the state for taxes delinquent since 1924-25 and including the tax for 1928-29.

Clark is charged with having appropriated the money to his own use and, while in office, prevented notices of delinquencies being sent to the owners of the land involved.

According to Mrs. Courtney she purchased the property in 1929 from the Orange Building and Loan association with the understanding that taxes then delinquent would be paid. Osman Pixley, secretary of the association, declares that he handed Clark a check for $444.92, the amount due and that Clark cashed it at a bank other than the one upon which it was drawn. Records of the city show the delinquency on the property but do not show that it had ever been redeemed or cancelled.

Test Case
Members of the city council, upon whom the demand for redemption certificates was made, have indicated that they will permit the case to go to court as a test case as other property in the city is involved. The councilmen are taking the position that Pixley was in error in paying the amount due for taxes to City Clerk Clark. They maintain the check should have been given to the treasurer.

Attorneys for Mrs. Courtney, and Pixley, maintain that it was necessary to first obtain an estimate of delinquency from the clerk. The check, they point out, was made payable to the city of Orange. At the time the payment was made, Clark and the city treasurer had adjoining desks with no partition between.

The formal demand for the certificate of redemption named Mayor C. A. Watson, Councilmen E. M. Chapman, C. J. Hessel, B. F. Dierker and A. H. Helm, City Clerk T. H. Eljah and City Treasurer Emma J. Pruitt and F. B. Richards as city tax and license collector.

JOHN GOETZ BACK IN COUNTY BASTILE
John Goetz, Delhi service station operator, who apparently was overlooked by Gov. James Rolph when he handed out Christmas pardons to Wright Act violators, was returned to the Orange county jail late yesterday from the state hospital at Norwalk where he has been since last July.

As far as the district attorney's office is concerned Goetz, whose time would have expired last night, had he remained in jail throughout his term, still must serve some five months in jail, due the fact that he was gone that long to the hospital.

He entered the jail here October 29, 1931, to serve 14 months on a charge of possession of liquor, a violation of the Wright Act. July 21, 1932, he was sent to the hospital at Norwalk and was pronounced cured yesterday. In a story printed in The Register yesterday, it was said he served only two months of his term instead of almost nine months. This was a mistake.

COLORADO BEATS CARDS

Large Navel Orange Grown Here

Here's a record to shoot at!
A navel orange weighing one pound and nine ounces was exhibited today in the offices of The Register.

The orange is a product of Santa Ana, having grown on a tree in the back yard of Mrs. T. Vance, widow of the former pastor of the Orange Avenue Christian church, at her home, 420 West First street.

S. A. KNIGHTS TEMPLAR SEAT NEW OFFICERS

Newly elected officers of Santa Ana Commandery, Knights Templar, were seated last night at impressive installation ceremonies held in the Masonic temple.

Very Eminent Sir Stanley C. Chapman, of Fullerton, who is grand commander of the state, acted as installing officer, while Eminent Sir Charles Kraemer acted as master of ceremonies.

Previous to the installation ceremonies, which were open to the public, a dinner was served in the temple to members of the commandery, their wives and friends.

Officers installed are: James E. Vinson, commander; Ed Pagenkopp, generalissimo; Asa Hoffman, captain general; R. W. McKnight, senior warden; M. B. Wellington, junior warden; A. N. Zerman, treasurer; B. Uttley, recorder; C. C. Violet, prelate; S. G. Anderson, standard bearer; C. E. Smith, sword bearer; J. R. Leonard, warrier; Harry Garstang, organist; J. H. Shaw, H. J. Zabel and F. H. Cloyes, guards, and Charles H. Smith, sentinel.

The ceremonies were interspersed with entertainment features which included selections by Mrs. Taylor Johnston, soprano; Ruth Swanson Lykke, soprano; Robert Dozier, tenor; Neva Fay Gerdes, reader. Ione Tunison Peek was at the piano.

Dr. L. L. Whitson is the retiring commander of the order.

NATIONAL HEAD OF B. P. O. E. IS HONORED HERE

Nearly 500 members of the Santa Ana B. P. O. Elks lodge and guests turned out last night to honor Judge Floyd E. Thompson, grand exalted ruler of the National Elks order, when he paid an official visit to the lodge. The visit was the first a grand exalted ruler has ever paid to the local lodge.

Judge Thompson, who is a member of the supreme court of Illinois, was the featured speaker of the evening. He was introduced by Tom L. McFadden of Anaheim, past exalted ruler of the Anaheim lodge, who is now district deputy grand exalted ruler of California, South.

Previous to the meeting, exalted rulers and officers from Santa Ana, Anaheim, Orange, Ontario, Riverside, Redlands, and San Bernardino were guests at a dinner honoring Judge Thompson which was given in the Elks hall.

Entertainment
After the meeting, entertainment was provided by the famous Santa Ana Elks double quartet and the Elks orchestra. A "feed" was enjoyed by all those present following the entertainment.

In his address, Judge Thompson stressed the importance of maintaining and bettering lodges all over the United States. He told how the order, like many others, had reached prominence and popularity following the war. He said this was because the Elks established two base hospitals in France for wounded soldiers of the United States, the first two to be built in France, had erected a huge memorial on the shores of Lake Michigan, came to the rescue of the Salvation Army by giving them $60,000 and had established a fund of $1,000,000 for the aid of disabled soldiers, besides caring for them in hospitals.

Compliments Lodge
The speaker complimented the local lodge for the work accomplished during the Christmas season when the order gave out 134 baskets and aided 435 persons, besides extending the scope of their charitable operations to many neighboring cities and aiding the children at the Orange County Health camp.

Judge Thompson said it would be his aim to weed out the undesirable Elks lodges all over the United States during the coming year, and to place the order "on a high plane and charity which has always characterized the order."

Exalted Ruler Gilbert Campbell of the local lodge, with Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Johnson

DOCTORS DENY REQUEST TO SUPERVISORS AUTHORIZED BY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Denials that the statement handed the board of supervisors Tuesday over the signature of the Orange County Medical association, recommending curtailment of the duties of the county health department had been authorized by the county medical organization, were made today by members and an officer of the association, who declared that the statement never was authorized by the association.

At the same time county doctors who presented the statement yesterday afternoon, in abandoning of the child health clinics being conducted by the department and the immunization program conducted in the schools as a preventative measure.

Dr. Harry Huffman, secretary of the Orange County Medical association, said yesterday afternoon, in conjunction with the letter presented the supervisors: "According to my records no such letter has been sent out by the Orange County Medical association. Any such statement introduced would be presented only as an expression of the opinion of a group of individuals."

A resolution was passed, however, concerning activities of the health department which was published recently in The Register. The resolution to which he referred was one sent to the state board of health.

The statement presented the board of supervisors Tuesday and upon which they delayed action for two weeks, recommended that the health department confine its activities strictly to matters of public sanitation, such as inspections and examination of water supply, inspection of milk, inspection of meats and foods, sewage control and other matters such as vital statistics, which, according to the statement "are for the mutual benefit of society as a whole."

The statement also declared that it was for the best interest of all that the medical needs of the people be cared for by the organized medical profession with each family selecting the kind of health service it desires. The statement also pointed out that medical and surgical service are furnished free to the needy at the county hospital. It also criticized the county health department's immunization program and said that the family doctor is better able to handle such work.

The statement was signed by Dr. J. L. Maroon, president of the Orange County Medical association, and under that organization's name. Prior to appearing before the board of supervisors the doctors and Secretary E. R. Majors, accompanied Judge and Mrs. Thompson to San Diego today, where the grand exalted ruler will pay official visits. Mrs. Thompson was accompanied here by Mrs. Robert Reddington, of Los Angeles.

EXPECT CROWD AT MEETING ON TECHNOCRACY

Intense interest which is being shown by many in the new theory of Technocracy, is expected to attract a large crowd to the Willard Junior high school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock tonight when prominent educators and economists will speak on the subject.

At this first public meeting in Santa Ana when Technocracy will be discussed, all of those present will be given an opportunity to ask any questions which might have been perplexing them.

Addresses will be given by Dr. Roy Malcolm of the political science department of the University of Southern California; H. F. Kennedy, of Laguna Beach, author of "Human Credits"; and by Dr. W. Maxwell Burke, Santa Ana attorney and member of the city school board. Following the addresses, the meeting will be thrown open to the audience for discussion.

There is a possibility that a Technocracy club will be formed following the meeting, according to Dr. Burke. There is no charge for the meeting and the public is invited to attend and participate.

Technocracy is the name given the plan which contemplates reorganization of America to function with a currency based on production rather than on precious metal and aiming to insure consumption of goods instead of profit. Dr. Burke pointed out in announcing details of the meeting here tonight.

"Technocracy," he said, "has been attacked by economists of the old school and also by industrialists and capitalists. It is defended vigorously by Howard Scott, chief Technocrat. It was expected that at first capitalists would attack the theory from every possible angle."

"What we are looking for now is information and facts and not so much for the ultimate details. People want to be informed. The group in Santa Ana wants to do its best to spread whatever information there is on the subject. This is the main object of the meeting tonight."

Burglar Steals Girl's Lingerie

Police were today seeking a bareheaded burglar who is believed responsible for the burglary of the apartment of Lenabelle Hughes, Chamber of Commerce secretary, at the Windsor apartments, 103 East Eleventh street, yesterday afternoon.

The apartment was ransacked and $17 worth of new underwear was reported stolen. Nothing else was taken.

A small girl in the neighborhood told police she saw a bareheaded man on the stairs leading to the apartment.

DRUNK DRIVER IS GIVEN 200 DAYS

Elmer Hill, 32, clerk of Anaheim, was sentenced to serve 100 days in the county jail or pay a fine of $200 in the city police court yesterday on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

He was arrested on South Main street several weeks ago by city motorcycle officers when the car he was driving was reported racing with a car driven by Everett Montgomery. Both men were arrested and both charged with driving cars while intoxicated.

Montgomery pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $200, which he paid. Hill pleaded not guilty and has been on bail since that time. Unable to pay the fine, Hill went to jail.

CHAPTER I

THE alarm whirled—as alarms, carefully set and wound, have a way of doing—whirled and strangled through the dark 67th street flat, reverberated in the airway, punctuated by a slamming of windows and the sound of voices.

"Aw, turn that alarm off, will ya?"

"Hey, you, Moran—I!"

"It's the redhead. Bud don't get up this early!"

Seven-thirty. . . . And Mona (nee Minnie) Moran stirred, nestled cozily for a moment, then lifted a slender arm from the coverlet and snapped off the shrill noise. She turned over again, placed a palm beneath her cheek and closed her eyes.

Mona long ago had decided that the last half hour of sleep caught this way—stolen really from the workaday world—was the most delicious. Thirty more drowsy minutes to reflect on this and that or to forget it all in the relaxation of another nap.

Mona had problems. What girl as young and lovely as Mona does not have—even when she is not, as Mona assuredly was—the support of her family? There were five in that family, counting Dad in the hospital and Bud, the elder brother, away from home when he had a job and back home when broke.

Seven-forty. Seven-fifty. Seven-fifty-five.

Then, as if another alarm had sounded, Mona stirred again. She patted a dainty yawn with the back of her rose-tipped hand, glanced at the sleeping Kitty beside her—Kitty's slim little girliness occupying more than half the narrow bed—and slid out carefully.

Mona stretched her arms again and took indifferent stock of herself in the mirror. She had become used to the pleasant report that mirror gave.

There were those who wondered why, with such a figure, such creamy skin, such gray-green eyes and miraculous bronze hair, Mona had not followed her first job as errand girl and later model at Pilgrim's with a stage affiliation.

It was true that Mona had had several such offers but she had rejected them all. To marry a stage electrician (more chorus girls did, you know, than landed millionaires) had no part in Mona Moran's plans.

So she had taken a job as receptionist for the exclusive law firm of Garretson, Lawton and Amesbury.

"I see people here," Mona confided to her friend, Lottie Carr. "I get to know them without parading half dressed behind the footlights. I learn to walk, to talk, to dress and how to act."

LOTTIE, tall, blond and languorous, was a model at Pilgrim's.

"That Carr girl is no better than she should be," Ma would declare after one of Lottie's visits to the Moran home. "Perfume, $20 an ounce! Handkerchiefs, $25 a dozen or I'm a liar. No good working girl—"

"Oh, she's all right, Mother!" Mona would protest. "It's just that—that Lottie—" She would break off here for Mona could hardly finish as she had intended, "It's just that Lottie has no family to support." Ma would be hurt—and rightly—at that.

"Well," Ma would weaken, "I don't want that girl calling up the house. I don't want you going out with her. My daughters are good girls."

Mona was, and indeed, for that matter, so was Lottie. Mrs. Moran might have had the rueful support of many rebuffed young men as to that.

Lottie, frivolous, gay, attractive in the costumes her position as model afforded her, would beg Mona to join her on frequent parties with that collection of young clubmen to whom Lottie referred as "the gang."

"Sometimes, Lottie. But don't count on me for many of these affairs. I need my sleep. I have to work."

"Go to bed and never meet any nice people!" Lottie amended here. "You might get yourself a husband if you'd step out more. Ever think of that?"

Mona shook her head. "Yes, I think of it. But you don't get them that way. I know my onions."

And Lottie had rejoined significantly, recalling the malodorous 67th street flat, "I'll say you do! But do you know the artichokes?"

As it happened Mona was not acquainted—then—with artichokes. Her answer was a shrug.

Mona knew that, for some time at least, she could not think of marrying. It was out of the question. Not with Bud acting as he did, in and out of a job, absent for days on end, home idling, begging small sums for carfare, cigarettes.

Not with her father in the hospital. Mona couldn't go to a husband saddled with these family cares.

Her father! Mona's patient, kindly, hard-working father, stricken suddenly with that obscure, powerful malady which no doctor named definitely, of which no doctor would predict the outcome! He had been in the hospital now for months. Terrence Moran and his wife had come to America years ago with such high hopes. They had left Ireland earlier than that for Scotland but in Glasgow had heard of America, the land of opportunity. Terrence had worked at this and that to provide for his ever-growing family. There had been two children older than Kitty, both dead.

THE Morans had lived in the same flat for years, protesting against the gradual rise in rents after the subway was opened. In the apartment house Terrence Moran had been something of a figure, his kindly philosophy sought at all times.

His stockinged feet high on the window sill, his eyes twinkling over his newspaper which he read with laboriously moving lips, Dad, in his way, influenced the entire neighborhood. They came to him for advice in matters of courtship and weddings, for condolence at the time of death, for encouragement in illness.

He had settled the Casey twins "once and for all" the time they ran away to Jersey and had their mother worried to death. He had arranged—yes, had contributed heavily toward—Tim Callahan's funeral. The night Joe Donahue's baby was born Dad had walked the streets with him, giving him comfortable assurance that he and Flossie would both live through it—to go through the whole thing all over again no doubt.

Lottie Carr had sufficient reason for adoring Mona's father. There had been the time her own father had locked her out when she came home late from Coney Island with that Brower boy. Terrence Moran had straightened that out.

Yes, Mona certainly owed it to Dad to stick by the family and not to think of marriage until—Until what? Mona's thoughts could get no further with the problem but Lottie's could—and did.

"Marry a man who'll take care of your family for you," was Lottie's plan.

Such men are few and far between. So are girls like Mona, with trim figures, glowing bronze hair, best of all an angelic disposition.

"You are the sort of girl, my dear, who'll marry some good-for-nothing some fine day and support him," Lottie averred. "Well, always room for one more! Remember"—significantly—"you're not getting any younger."

"Why don't you marry?" Mona would demand hotly at this stage of the discussion.

"I've made my plans," Lottie would reply enigmatically. "Meanwhile, why not go out with us tonight and look the eligibles over?"

BARRY TOWNSEND

In spite of varying opinions on many subjects the girls were quite friendly.

* * *

FROM eight o'clock, when Ma gently knocked on Mona's door to supplement the alarm, until eight-fifteen the dark, tiny little gas-lit bathroom down the hall was Mona's sole property. Ma knew it. Kitty knew it. Even Bud—the overlord of the radio, the easiest chair and the newspaper—acquiesced.

"She supports us all," Ma would say flatly. "If all she asks is a hot bath in the morning, by hook or crook, she'll get that bath."

And Mona got it. It took a little conniving with the janitor but that was managed. A rich warm bath, creamy with scented salts given to Mona at Christmas by Lottie, 10 minutes relaxation in the dismal tin tub.

Another five minutes and Mona had dried her slender body, donned the wispy georgette thing she wore under her slip, brushed her bronze hair into its customary waves, deftly turning the ends into a roll at her creamy neck, touched her lips carefully with lipstick, and drawn her tailor-made wool gown over her head, settling the white frills at neck and wrist with a speculative frown.

A delicate film of powder came next. Mona's smart little hat was drawn on carefully. Her purse—there. Her coat and gloves—here. Barring an accident or two, and breakfast in the offing, she was ready.

Other girls at the law office wore silk dresses of flashy color and design. Cheap, typical. They were the dresses offered in many shops on lower Broadway. One could not, it seemed, bring one's salary very far from Wall Street.

But Mona, sent by chance on an errand for her employer's wife (serving on a charity committee), had observed that this exponent of the envied class wore black wool with delicate collar and cuffs. The frills of Mrs. Garretson's gown had, in fact, cost a trifle more than the brown crepe frock Mona was wearing. Real lace was too expensive for Mona but it was not long after this encounter that she disposed of the brown crepe and appeared at the office in tailored black wool.

By some odd chance Bud Moran, Mona's brother, was not only at home but was up betimes and breakfasting. Sleek of hair, shifty-eyed and morose, Bud sat at the other end of the table, busily engaged in consuming a bowl of cereal and milk.

Mona thought absently that she had read somewhere that men ate far more sensibly than women, as a rule. Well, it was the only sensible thing Bud did. His activities worried Mona. Bud was furtive, mysterious.

If Min would leave her silk underwear out on a chair Ma would rub it out and press it. There was no sense to Min's tiring herself out at night after work.

"It's your day to visit your father anyhow," Ma observed somewhat unnecessarily. Mona was as likely to forget to go to the office as to the hospital on visiting night.

"Tell him I'll be over Sunday," Ma went on. She always said that. "I'll roast him a chicken. Kitty can go up to Alice's—"

As Ma always cooked something for her husband, and as Kitty always spent Sunday with Alice, this required no particular response. Alice was Mona's elder sister, married these two years and much

ous. Never a day passed that Mona quite escaped that nameless worry over her brother. She saw vague disgrace in the offing.

* * *

THERE was orange juice for breakfast, scrambled eggs and golden toast liberally buttered. The delicious scent of coffee had been filling the halls for half an hour. Ma poured a steaming cup and set it beside Mona's plate.

In a clean print house gown, Mrs. Moran was taking her comfortable way between table and stove, chatting busily, neither waiting for nor expecting response. She announced that Kitty's marks at school were better this month. "You see, Min, what a little interest in them teachers does for a child?"

For Ma, swathed in her best black, had bustled over to have a talk with Kitty's principal.

Mona smiled. She knew that most likely Miss Preston, with hundreds of children to deal with, did not know Kitty Moran by sight.

Mrs. Callahan had new linoleum for the kitchen. About time Joe did something for his mother except bring his girl in for dinner every Sunday. The Donahue twins were teething. The Caseys were going to have one of them new French telephones.

MONA MORAN

against Ma's wishes. However, after the deed had been done Ma was the first to give Alice her support.

Most of the baby's finery had been bought by Ma from dimes and quarters saved painstakingly out of the housekeeping money. Mona suspected that Ma's movie money found its way into the same fund.

IT had been Alice's rather unfortunate marriage which had set Mona against marrying a poor man. Her sister, once so smart-looking, skipping off to work every morning, so proud of her ability to help with the family expenses, was now, after two years of married life, a changed being.

Dressed sloppily in house dresses, her hair straggling about her neck, her face guiltless of color and her skin unpowdered, Alice struggled half-heartedly through her day's work in a badly furnished, rather malodorous little flat.

There were always, no matter at what time of day one might call, dishes soaking in the sink, babies' clothes draping the radiator, something stewing on the stove and a broom to be stumbled over in the dark hallway.

The baby was always ailing, always whimpering in apologetic little moans. Jim, the rather disillusioned young husband, sought a pool room after the casual, badly-cooked meal Alice would set out for him. Mona could hardly blame him. It was amazing that this drab, uninterested, unkempt little creature could be the gay, chic Alice who had gone off so confidently to marry Jim.

Whose fault was it that their marriage had turned out so badly? Nobody's, probably. Just the pressure of circumstances.

"Where'd you get the orange juice?" remarked Bud. It was an unprecedented extravagance in the Moran household.

Minnie's beau had brought her home from a party in Brooklyn. Ma explained. "And this is what he stops and buys at one of them markets on Washington Place. A crate of oranges, mind you! Drinking, I'll bet. Anyhow better than a lot of orchids!"

She pronounced the word "orchards." Ma had met that exotic flower only in print.

"No," Mona said. "Mr. Hart stopped to talk to one of the marketmen in Washington street, Mother. You know they get there late at night and wait until morning when the hotel people buy. Well, then Mr. Hart wanted to buy something, too. The crate was right there and he couldn't take it home very well to his club so he gave it to me. He knows we have a large family."

* * *

MONA laughed slightly. Cliff Hart was a friend of Lottie's. Rather a good sort, too. Lots of money, funny roguish eyes, twinkling gray-blue.

This rather dashing young man, in a humorous frame of mind, had insisted on driving Mona home, via Brooklyn bridge. The party had been in 71st street.

"Yeah, he did it for the family!" Bud began derisively. "Children." Ma softly interposed. She filled Bud's plate with crisp bacon and carefully browned potatoes.

"Eat a real meal now, Min. I declare you're as skinny as a rail."

"And," Bud rapped out, "it ain't so stylish!"

Kitty appeared, cozy in her blue bathrobe, her hair tousled and face flushed from sleep, demanding her orange juice. She moved kitchen-ward with a backward glance over the lifted rim of her glass and at once engaged in conversation with Ma concerning a talk at school on the subject of vitamins.

"You are early, Bud," Mona remarked with lowered voice. "Everything all right?"

Bud's eyes shifted and he looked at his sister uneasily. "Yeah." There was a pause. Mona knew what that meant.

"It's up Fordham way. I'll need carfare, Min."

"Bud, I've got 50 cents to last until tonight. There is carfare, there is lunch and a shine."

"Make one of your swell friends buy your lunch."

The girl's lips tightened. "I don't do that, Bud."

"Well, they buy you dinner—"

"That's different. I'm out of the office then. And I don't dine with anyone I've met through the office."

It was one of Mona's unbreakable rules. She had heard Mr. Garretson thus instruct a younger lawyer. "Never play around with an employe or a client."

There were plenty of others to show Mona attentions. Yes, but they didn't invite her to lunch.

"I'll give you 15 cents and that's that," Mona announced after an unsatisfactory inspection of her purse. "You must have something with you. You have cigarettes—"

"There's a quarter on the shelf Bud can take," Ma called in quickly. "I have ice, and milk, and there's fruit—"

"Don't give him any money, Ma," threw in Kitty unexpectedly. "Make him walk to Fordham. Do him good. Or"—pertly—"get that girl of his to give him a lift in her car."

* * *

THE conversation at the table ceased abruptly.

"Who says I've got a girl with a car?" Bud inquired in surprise.

"I say so," Kitty appeared in the doorway, conscious of the backing of her mother who had followed her in innocent interest and stood close at hand. "I say so and so does Isabel Flynn. We saw you yesterday at the corner."

"Oh," Bud's face lost all interest. He attacked the food on his plate with renewed energy. "That was Rus Webber's wife. Rus was buying a pack of cigarettes. My girl!"

"A fine girl Gertrude Webber is, too," Ma remarked. "Rus was lucky to get her. I well remember the day—"

Her voice in a rush of reminiscence floated back from an increasing distance. She was in the kitchen getting her purse.

"Wasn't she the girl whose mother wanted a baby with curly hair?" asked Mona amusedly.

"Like yours and Alice's."

"Like ours. And didn't her mother sew bought curls in her bonnet so people seeing her in her carriage—"

"Blond curls and the baby's own hair black as the ace of spades," her mother amended. "That was Gertrude. But for all that she grew up to be good-looking, curls or no curls."

"She doesn't wear false hair now," Bud remarked defensively. Rus Webber was a good guy. If he married a straight-haired dame then straight hair was the ticket. Bud would wear nothing that sounded like a reflection on Rus or his bride.

"What is your new job—a garage job?" Mona asked as Ma disappeared with the coffee pot.

Bud shifted. "Yeah. Something like that. It may be night work. I've got to show up this morning, anyhow."

His eyes, avoiding hers, attached themselves to a spot on the table cloth. He drank his coffee moodily.

Mona rose, put her chair back in its place, picked up her coat, slid into it, and took up her purse and gloves. She was at the door when Bud called suddenly:

"Guess who I saw yesterday, Min!"

He was regarding her shrewdly as if his news was of great import. A smile hovered over his lips. He rose from his chair.

"I haven't the least idea, Bud. I don't know your friends."

"Your friend, Min." He came a step or two nearer.

She was frankly puzzled. Their social activities were as far apart as the poles. "A friend of mine?"

"I'll say a friend of yours, Min." Bud's voice dropped insinuatingly. He took a step nearer his sister.

"Well."

Already she knew what Bud was about to tell her. She grasped the knob of the door for support.

"Steve's back, Min. Old Steve—he's back!"

PAY TRIBUTE TO JOSHUA CHIPPS AT LAST RITES

With the chapel filled with loyal friends, impressive funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Joshua N. Chipps, 103 years old, said to be the oldest voter in the United States, at the Winbrier Mission Funeral home.

Hushed strains of an organ playing "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling" opened the services. Mrs. George A. Warner sang two selections, "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me," and "Shadows."

Honorary pall bearers were P. L. Briney, W. C. Baker, L. V. Meyers, J. F. Lamp, A. B. Smith and Dr. Thos. Badgley, members of the Men's Bible class of the First M. E. church of which S. M. Davis is leader.

Dr. George A. Warner, pastor of the First Methodist church of which Joshua Chipps was a faithful member, officiated at the services.

"Not many of us are granted the privilege of being centenarians," Dr. Warner said. "Many of those who live through a complete century find the closing years an added burden. To Joshua Chipps was given the high joy of 103 creative years with three months and nine days thrown in for good measure. To the very end he was alert, active and interested in life as he found it."

"He cast his first vote for President Pierce, remembered the stirring days of the Lincoln campaigns and down to the recent election took an active interest in politics. He was always found making an earnest effort to know what was right, then to vote it and live it. He prided himself on not knowing the taste of liquor and of having freed himself of the tobacco habit and gave much credit to his abstinence for his longevity."

"He was born in Tompkins county, New York, October 16, 1829. At six years of age he moved with his parents to Chester, Ohio, when Ohio was a frontier state. The challenge of the pioneer country got into his blood and at 23 he joined a company of friends who with a covered wagon determined to explore the new frontier, then Iowa. He settled at Monroe, where he took up a homestead. He went back to Ohio for Charlotte Scarborough who became his wife, but who died in 1907."

"Although the couple never had children, they adopted a nephew and niece of Mrs. Chipps. The niece is the mother of E. J. McCauley with whom Mr. Chipps has made his home during his stay in Santa Ana."

"Mr. Chipps was preeminently a church man. He never lost interest in the church. During the past three years he faithfully attended church school and morning worship at the First Methodist church. One hundred forty-five out of the 156 Sundays, he was present for roll call. Just a week before he died, he was in his Sunday school class."

"We shall miss him. He is away but his spirit abides. He was a source, kindly, Christian gentleman."

RELIEF CORPS SOCIAL CLUB NAMES LEADER

ANAHEIM, Dec. 29.—Mrs. Mary Mitchell was elected president of the social club of the A. B. Paul Women's Relief Corps Tuesday afternoon when the annual holiday party was held in her home on South Los Angeles street. Mrs. Annabelle Tomblin is the retiring president.

The party also served as a delightful occasion for the entertaining of officers and representatives from the five different corps in the county. There were 44 women or the pot luck luncheon held at the noon hour.

The afternoon was devoted to an informal program with readings given by Mrs. Lavina Stanley of Whittier and games in which all joined. The door prize was given to Mrs. Mary Buckingham of Southgate. Inexpensive gifts were exchanged about the large, decorated Christmas tree.

DATES FOR ANNUAL PICNICS REVEALED

Dates of three great annual reunions for former residents of and tourists from Illinois, Minnesota and Iowa were announced today by C. H. Parsons, secretary of Federation of State Societies at the Hotel Alexandria in Los Angeles.

The Illinois event will be held Saturday, January 21, in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles; Minnesota at the same place on Saturday, February 18, and the Iowa reunion is scheduled for Lincoln park, Los Angeles, on Saturday, February 25.

Parsons said that these would be the only all-California picnics for these three states this winter, and should not be confused with local picnics.

ANAHEIM PERSONALS

ANAHEIM, Dec. 29.—Miss Gladys Hopson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Hopson on West Center street, is enjoying a week's vacation at her home. She is a nurse at the Good Samaritan hospital in Los Angeles.

Miss Pauline Nanno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Nanno of North Clementine street left last night for Tucson, Arizona, where she is a student nurse in St. Mary's hospital.

Mrs. Kate E. McCullah and daughter Katherine Ann McCullah will return Saturday from a vacation spent out of town with friends. They have been gone since Tuesday.

St. Agnes Guild will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Miss Dorothy Yungbluth, 815 West Broadway street for a bridge party. A short business session will precede the social occasion.

Mrs. J. D. Van de Veer of North street was hostess yesterday to the members of P. E. O. sisterhood. The business meeting was preceded by a luncheon at 12 o'clock.

Anaheim Police Notes

ANAHEIM, Dec. 29.—Herbert Oakie Jr. and Mrs. Richard Elliott Jr. each reported bicycles stolen. The former was stolen three days ago from South Citron street and the latter was taken from the garage yesterday.

W. H. Pritchard of 206 South Kroeger street reported yesterday that a "hit-and-run" driver struck him on December 24 as he was crossing Broadway and Lemon streets. He suffered a sprained ankle and several bruises. He was taken immediately to his home. He described the car that hit him as being a large, black sedan.

FLEET TEAMS TIE
SAN PEDRO, Calif., Dec. 29.—(UP)—The U. S. S. Maryland and West Virginia shared honors today as co-champions of the Pacific Coast fleet's best football team. The two teams battled to a scoreless tie yesterday in a game which was to have decided the title. The

MERCURY HIT NEW OFFICERS DANGER MARK: BREAKFASTERS LIGHT HEATERS ARE INSTALLED

Cold descended upon Orange county last night, bringing new low temperatures for the year which brought danger for citrus fruits in the county and necessitating the lighting of orchard heaters in various parts of the county for the first time this year.

Mercury in thermometers stationed in groves in the county dropped as low as 27 degrees early this morning, two degrees below the danger point for citrus fruit. The coldest point was at 4 o'clock this morning.

Fortunately, the cold did not endure long enough to damage citrus fruits, according to packing house managers and Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg, who pointed out that growers this year are fortunate so far in escaping losses from the cold which is much more severe than usual.

At 2 o'clock this morning in citrus groves near Santa Ana, the temperature dropped to 50 degrees. From that point on the temperature dropped rapidly, hitting the 30 degree mark at 4 o'clock and 27-2 degree mark at 6:30 o'clock in groves east of Santa Ana. Little frost was present. It was pointed out, however, that fruit is more liable to freeze on dry nights than on moist nights.

A brisk wind which blew until around 4 o'clock this morning saved the county from a general freeze. The wind abated about that time, and the rising sun with resultant rising temperatures brought relief from the cold snap.

The temperature in the Yorba Linda district at the coldest point was 27 degrees. In Orange, particularly around the West Orange district, the temperature dropped to 28 degrees early this morning. The coldest point in Garden Grove area was 30 degrees at 4 o'clock this morning, and growers reported no smudging in the area, although spots were lighted in the other sections.

FEAST OF LIGHTS WILL BE OBSERVED

ANAHEIM, Dec. 29.—The traditional Feast of Lights or the Twelfth Night service will be held on Sunday night, January 8, in St. Michael's Episcopal church, according to an announcement made by the Rev. D. Howard Dow. The candlelight ceremony will begin at 7:30 o'clock and will depict the coming of the three wise men.

According to the old superstition if each member of the congregation succeeds in reaching home with a small candle still lighted, good luck will be theirs for the coming year.

Another added feature of the service and one particularly fitting to the occasion will be the dedication of the new lighting fixtures that are being presented to the church by the Agnes Guild.

IRVINE

IRVINE, Dec. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Blain Jones and a group of friends from Michigan were recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Sears, of the Fruit ranch.

Mrs. Hurley Sears of Modesto was a guest of honor on one day when a group of friends met at the home of Mrs. Walter Cook of McFadden street, Santa Ana. Those who enjoyed the day were Mrs. Sears, Mrs. John Hicks, Mrs. Claude Adams, Mrs. William Whitehead, Mrs. Bruce Stockton, Mrs. Henry Boosey and the hostess, Mrs. Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sellers entertained a group of friends and relatives at dinner at the Com-munity hall Sunday. In the evening the guests played bridge. The guests for the day were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stevens and daughter, Dorothy, and sons, Buddy and Burton; Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and daughters, Marilyn and Evelyn and son, Woodrow; Mr. and Mrs. Gene George and daughter, Earline; Mr. Sellers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sellers, all of Pomona, and Kenneth Mayoy of Irvine.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead and family enjoyed a dinner in the home of their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Peters, of Wintersburg, Sunday night.

Dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Sears of the Fruit ranch were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Marks, Mrs. Mary Sears, all of Tustin; Mr. and Mrs. Will Tidball and son, Billy, of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Slim Draper and two daughters, of Pasadena; Mrs. Hurley Sears and sons, Hurst and Paul, and daughters, Demaris and Mrs. Errol Hunt, and son, Buddy, all of Modesto; Herb Meyer, of Santa Ana, and Mr. and Mrs. Levi Sears, of Oxnard.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hicks had as guests Sunday Mrs. Hicks' brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hansley of Los Angeles and a brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Haneley, and two daughters, Louise and Irene, of Santa Ana.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

MACK REMAINS
John McGraw has retired. Uncle Robbie has been snatched out of the big leagues. Only Mack, of the Old Guard, remains. At 70, he carries on.
He might have set a record for the American league—four pennants in a row—but he athletes oftened on him...he saw it coming in the 1931 world series.
He began to rebuild again...and started Al Simmons, "Mule" Haas and Jimmy Dykes to the White Sox...he is starting out afresh, with no thought of retiring.

HIS GREATEST TEAM
He always has been a man to give credit to his own players...he thinks that Ty Cobb was the greatest ball player who ever lived...and the greatest pitcher of them all was Matty...and he had Waddell when the Rube was at his best...and Plank and Coombs and Bender and some other fine pitchers on that "perfect team."
Once he was asked to pick a team from his own players to play an imaginary contest for $1,000,000...and the team he picked had Harry Davis at first base, Eddie Collins at second, Jack Barry at short and Frank Baker at third...Al Simmons would be his left fielder...Mule Haas in center...Denny Murphy in right...though it was hard for the man to keep "Rube" Eldridge out of there...and Strunk.

FOOTBALL COACHES CAMPAIGN AGAINST 'RUTHLESS FIRING'

BY JACK CUDDY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(UP)—The nation's football coaches have begun a campaign against the ruthless "firing" of coaches in an attempt to stabilize the coaching profession.
The American Football Coaches' association has pledged the most strenuous fight since the association's inception in 1921.
An undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the indiscriminate discharging of coaches, which threatened the two-day meeting of the association, flamed into the open in the closing minutes of the final session and at last night's Brown Derby banquet.
Amos Alonzo Starg, 72, "grand old man" of the gridiron, "sounded the battle cry at the banquet when he declared the profession must be stabilized to prevent coaches from continuing to "suffer unduly." He recommended a "campaign of common sense" which will be carried to colleges, to alumni, public and press.
Dan McGugin of Vanderbilt university, newly elected president, pledged the association's utmost efforts to remedy the situation.

HORNWILL, SMITH LEAD FOR CARD JOB

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Dec. 29.—(INS)—"Tiny" Hornwill still leads the race today for the post of head football coach here, left vacant by the resignation of "Pop" Warner, according to informal reports from Stanford athletic heads.
Hornwill is backed by the majority of Northern California alumni. "Clipper" Smith of Santa Clara is running Hornwill a close second.
The board of athletic control will make its final decision early in January.

Oliver Named Arizona's Track Coach

'TEX' HOPES TO ARRANGE S. A. INGLEWOOD TILT

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 29.—(INS)—Arizona university regents today voted to employ as track coach G. A. "Tex" Oliver, for seven years head of physical education in Santa Ana, Calif., schools.

BY EDDIE WEST
Breaking his silence for the first time since Santa Ana's phenomenal succession of football victories was interrupted by Inglewood, Coach "Tex" Oliver today told The Register that every effort would be made to include Inglewood, new Southern California champion, on the Saints' 1933 schedule.
This revelation came during a gossip review of the past season which reached a climax at Manual Aris field when Inglewood terminated Santa Ana's 26-game winning streak and lifted the school's cherished Southern California championship.
Inglewood, Oliver thinks, was the strongest team Santa Ana has opened since 1926, the season "Tex" came here as head coach. After careful and deliberate reflection, he agrees that Inglewood was a better eleven than Alhambra's powerful '28 machine which crushed Santa Ana in a championship contest by 40 points 47-7.

CATHOLICS BAG 47-38 DECISION OVER HIS FIVE

Against one of the fastest of its many non-conference opponents, Santa Ana's basketball team was outplayed 47 to 38, by St. Joseph's Catholics of the City Church league in Andrews gymnasium last night.
With Ernie Acker and Weston Sprague at forward, Laurence Roberts at center, Bob Schwarm and Al Thielien at guard, the Saints started off strongly, capturing the lead in the first quarter when Young and Richardson of the Catholics rolled up 15 points to shove their teammates ahead, 21-7, before the end of the half.
Offensively, the Saints had trouble with their forwards. Defensively, it was their forwards who did not function. Had they been up to par, there might have been a different score, although the winners displayed teamwork and basketball-hitting accuracy that labeled them the outstanding five.

Team Would Have Won
Q—What would have happened if Santa's 1931 team had been playing Inglewood?
A—In my opinion, the 1931 team was unbeatable, especially in the later games. However, the '31 team had the benefit of a bye in the playoff schedule.
Q—Do you think Santa Ana would have won from Inglewood had Montgomery been able to play the full game at top speed?
A—I believe he would have made a great difference. The boys have confidence in Monty. He is a great defensive player, when not injured, and I believe we would have outplayed Inglewood with Monty in there.

San Diego Respected
Q—What team, other than Inglewood, was the best Santa Ana met this year?
A—San Diego.
Q—Which opponent (team) was most feared?
A—San Diego and Long Beach, as always.

Pop Warner Off To See Pitt, Troy
Q—Was this year's Santa Ana backfield as good as last year's, and what was the difference?
A—This year's backfield was not quite as good. It was less versatile. There was no blocker, passer equal to Floyd Blower. There was less average speed and fewer first class replacements.

Bowler Misses 300 As 7-Pin Wavers, Stands
Henry Christman missed the promised limit of bowling by the mere matter of one pin at the Bowlers' Inn here yesterday when he cracked the maple woodpile for 299, the highest score ever made by a Santa Ana trundler.

SEEK BIG RING GO FOR CIGAR'S FAIR
CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(UP)—George Getz, Chicago sportsman and close friend of Jack Dempsey, was to confer with World's Fair officials today relative to opening negotiations for bringing to Chicago the Max Schmeling-Max Baer heavyweight fight in June, 1933.

Can The Panthers Leap This Wall Of Troy?

COACHES STRING WITH TROY

Consensus of Mentors is S. C. Wins 'Roses' Game

ANDERSON AND WARNER AGREE

By BILL BRAUCHER
(NEA Service Sports Editor)
Coach Jack Sutherland of the Pitt Panthers, the team that is to play the Trojans of Southern California in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena Monday may be pessimistic but—
He isn't half as doubtful about his ball club's chances to lick Howard Jones' machine as are his brother coaches throughout the country.
Character builders at other colleges and universities, polled by NEA Service for predictions as to the outcome of the Pitt-U. S. C. clash, have turned in what might be called a practically unanimous report in favor of the Trojans. Those who didn't pick the Trojans to win didn't pick anybody.

"Hunk" Anderson of Notre Dame
kicks off with the following message:
"Southern California will beat Pittsburg because the Trojans are strong both on offense and defense. Pitt has a great defensive club but is not much on offense as low scores in hard games indicate. Pitt's second touchdown against Notre Dame (resulting from an intercepted forward pass) was more or less fluky."
Now let's go away out to the Pacific Coast (at excursion rates please, mister) and listen to the counsel of "Babe" Hollinberry, coach at Washington State, who speaks in this wise:
"Southern California is favored to win the Rose Bowl game by reason of the psychology of the setup, previous victories, and local atmosphere. Southern California has been advancing with great strides throughout the season and will be at its peak. Pittsburg is a great foe, and I look for a close game but a western victory."

Going down the coast a little way to where "Pop" Warner kept house at Stanford for nearly ten years, Pop used to be coach at Pitt himself, and coached Jack Sutherland, who played guard. "Pop" Anderson took a beating at Pitt's hands this year in the season's closing game, and earlier "Pop's" team took a beating from the Trojans, too. Says "Pop":
"I believe Pittsburg has a considerably stronger team than the Pitt team which was so greatly outclassed by Southern California when they met before. But Southern California's superior man power is still too great for the easterners to overcome. I pick the Trojans by two touchdowns."
In Pitt's own territory, Harry Stuhldreher, coach at Villanova and quarterback of the Four Horsemen, has this to say:
"Southern California seems to me a likely winner in a close game. The Trojan line and forward pass attack will be too strong for Pitt. Pitt is a fine representative team to the coast and should give Southern California plenty of trouble."

Dick Hanley, coach at Northwestern expressed the view that he could not pick a winner, because:
"Inequality in the condition of the two teams make the outcome very uncertain. The eastern team will have no opportunity to practice under game conditions until they arrive. I believe they will lose their late November form, while Southern California, with a game as late as Dec. 10, is keeping in good shape. Pitt is a great team, however, and if the club could keep the form displayed in the Stanford game, which I saw, it

RAY BRUBAKER APPOINTED OAK CLUB MANAGER

OAKLAND, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Ray Brubaker, veteran infielder, today was named manager of the Oakland team of the Pacific Coast baseball league.
Officials of the club made the announcement after considerable discussion of the field of candidates had resulted in the choice of Ray Brubaker and Louis Guisto, first baseman.
Brubaker was chosen because of his willingness to be a player-manager, it was said.

SARAZEN EXPLAINS L.A. OPEN ABSENCE
NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Gene Sarazen, U. S. and British Open golf champion, in a telegram to the United Press, has explained why he and Walter Hagen will not compete in the Los Angeles Open tournament. The message, signed by Sarazen, follows:
"I have received clippings intimating all sort of wild rumors explaining failure of Hagen and myself to file entries for Los Angeles Open. Appreciate your quoting me to effect that a contract with the Miami-Biltmore Country club prevents us from going to coast."

FRIEL RESIGNS AS BROWN OFFICE BOSS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 29.—(UP)—William E. Friel, business manager of the St. Louis Browns, American league baseball club, since 1923, has resigned, he said today.
Friel, in announcing his resignation to take effect Dec. 31, said it was "for the best of all concerned." He was a player with the Browns in 1902 and 1903.

EXPECT 45,000 MONDAY: U. S. C. 2 TO 1 FAVORITE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(UP)
The Universities of Southern California and Pittsburgh appeared today to be lacking in that magnetic team personality that in years past has drawn near capacity houses to Pasadena's Rose Bowl for the annual New Year's Day intercollegiate football clash.
Only 45,000 tickets have been sold to date, four days before the game. Unless a sharp pickup in sales occurs today and tomorrow, it was generally believed not more than 45,000 cash customers would be in the stands Monday. This would be 15,000 short of attendance figures of last year when Southern California's victorious Tulane and 49,000 less than the turnout for this year's Southern California-Notre Dame encounter at Memorial stadium.
The dearth of early ticket buyers is attributed more to lack of interest in the forthcoming battle than any other single factor.

Response Apathetic
Tournament officials discouraged the ticket campaign by drastically reducing prices but the response has been apathetic.
The undefeated Trojans ruled as 2 to 1 favorites to rout the Easterners in betting quotations today. Even money was accepted by some commission with Pitt takers receiving 12 points.
Bettors seemed to be little concerned with comparative records of the two teams, which despite Pitt's two ties and the Trojans' string of 19 consecutive victories, clearly indicated the Panthers' defensive strength and Southern California's inauspicious scoring record. Trojans' most impressive victory of the season was over Utah with a 35-0 score whereas last year they routed the touted Georgia eleven 60 to 0 several weeks before engaging Tulane in the Rose Bowl clash.

Panthers Entrain Saturday
At Tucson, Coach Jack Sutherland was gradually tapering off in his workouts which will be wound up Saturday when the Panthers entrain for Pasadena. With characteristic gloom the Pitt men-enters was not sanguine in his predictions.
"If the Panthers defeat the Trojans," he said today, "they will have to depend on what they have learned during the past week."
Pitt was scheduled for three more sessions of signal drills and practice before leaving for California. Sutherland said he would ease up day by day until

Late News From Orange County Communities

GARLIC DRYING AT H. B. PLANT DISCONTINUED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 29.—N. Sasaki, manager of the pepper drying plant on Hampshire avenue near Ulica, today informed Councilman John H. Marlon that there would be no further garlic drying at the plant. Councilman Marlon visited the pepper drying plant following the filing of a petition with the city council protesting against the odor from the drying plant. A permit had been granted to a Los Angeles firm to use a portion of the pepper drying plant for drying garlic. The odor caused wide complaint. Sasaki explained that the garlic drying plant at Five Points had burned down between seasons and the garlic from farms near the city had been contracted for. As the season is short, lasting only a couple of weeks, the pepper drying plant owners were prevailed upon to permit the garlic drying to be done on a part of their grounds this year. The pepper drying plant is probably the largest industry in this city not connected with the oil industry. The pepper plant discharges $150,000 annually in labor and operating expenses and produces almost the entire pepper crop of this part of Orange county. It is a model plant, the largest of its kind in the world, and no complaint has ever been made of the pepper plant or its manner of operation, according to councilmen.

Families Aided By Brea Group

BREA, Dec. 29.—In the neighborhood of 90 families, comprising something more than 200 persons, were served by the Brea-Olinda Welfare association during the week end, Edward M. McDonald, secretary, stated today. Baskets of food, candy, clothing and bedding were given out to families in Brea and Olinda communities. In addition to this, the Union Oil company welfare department looked after families formerly employed by them and still living in the vicinity. Reconditioned and new toys were dispensed by the student body of the Brea-Olinda union high school with the girls' league in charge. Thirty families received $2 merchandise orders on Brea stores through the Brea Lions club.

Manufacture Of Rope Explained To Service Clubs

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 29.—R. M. Buckles, representative of the Western Cordage company, Orange, talked to members of the Newport Harbor Service club and the Costa Mesa Lions club, meeting jointly at the American Legion clubhouse, yesterday. He was introduced by Mark Johnson, program chairman for the day.

Buckles explained the manufacture of rope from the time the fiber is received, most of it coming from the Philippine islands, until the finished product is turned out, and invited members of the two clubs to visit the plant at Orange.

Everett Rea, president of the Lions club, who was chairman of the joint meeting, said that the Lions would meet Friday night to decide on future meetings. Both clubs will meet at the Legion hall next Tuesday, when Roy Anderson will be in charge of the program.

'MADAM BUTTERFLY' OPENS RUN TODAY AT FOX BROADWAY

"Madame Butterfly," Paramount's modernized screen version of the famous love classic which opens today at the Fox Broadway theatre.

The film is based on the life of the real Madame Butterfly, a beautiful Japanese girl, falling in love with an American naval officer, she throws over the customs and traditions of her Japanese ancestry to marry him. After several months of conjugal bliss, he sails back to the states promising to return.

Madame Butterfly waits faithfully, despite the entreaties of her family to remarry a wealthy, high-born Japanese. Finally, her lover returns, but under circumstances which bring a touching, unusual scene.

Sylvia Sydney has the title role, supported by Cary Grant, especially known for his work in "The Sign of the Cross," and the humorist Charlie Ruggles, Irving Pichel.

and Helen Jerome Eddy are also in the cast. As an added special feature for the next three days the theatre also is showing "Little Orphan Annie," starring Mimi Green and May Robinson. It is the type show that will endear Mimi to her followers 100 per cent.

BETTY COMPSON ON SCREEN AT WALKERS

As beautiful and charming as ever, Betty Compsom returned to the screen of Walker's State theatre yesterday after an absence of more than a year in "Guilty or Not Guilty," one of the most entertaining mystery melodramas to be seen on the local screen in many a moon.

Betty Compsom has a role that fits her like the proverbial glove, appearing as the hard-boiled, good-hearted bootlegger's girl friend whose kindly though dangerous interference finally solves the problems of Miss Dell and her fiancé, as played by Tom Douglas, the brilliant young American-born actor who has made such a success on the English stage.

Legion's Dance Saturday Night

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 29.—Legionnaires and their friends from all parts of Orange county and elsewhere are preparing to ring in 1933 in a big way next Saturday night, when the 18th annual high jinx will be held at the Rendezvous ballroom at Balboa. Everybody is invited for the dancing and other entertainment which will be indulged in until the early hours of New Year's Day, according to E. B. Whitson, chairman of the committee.

'BACK STREET' AND LAUREL AND HARDY ON AT WEST COAST

Two very popular films of several months ago are being returned to the screen of the Fox West Coast theatre today and tomorrow through popular demand. They are Laurel and Hardy in "Back Up Your Troubles" and "Back Street," which features John Bowles and Irene Dunn.

"Back Street," it will be remembered, was one of the most interesting plays of the year. From the novel by Fannie Hurst, it is the story of the woman who surrendered her entire life for a man she could never marry. She had to stay in the background of his life, alone, unable to make her own friends and not allowed to meet him. The story is absorbing and one that women will particularly like.

"Back Up Your Troubles" is the second feature length picture made by Laurel and Hardy, Metro Goldwyn Mayer's fun boys. It is a comedy on the war and after the war, and while its plot is good, it gives you a better impression of the two actors than any other picture they have ever made.

Pony Killed By Poisoned Grass

WINTERSBURG, Dec. 29.—The children of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Parrel, Oland, Ellen, Elizabeth and Ruby, are mourning the death of their pet riding pony. The animal ate of grass in the yard of the home which had caught some of the poison with which the county sprayed local ditches. A number of small animals are reported to have been killed in a like manner.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG -- News Behind the News --

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

SUPREME COURT

Those who peek into the sanctum sanctorum of the supreme court avow that young Chief Justice Hughes is out for a new career.

Up to now the court has followed a certain trend in its decisions. It presumed for one thing the country wanted to be dry. In 10 years it sanctioned search and seizure, wrecking of elaborate speakeasies by prohibition agents, wire tapping and such things. Mr. Hughes appears to be leading in the establishment of a new trend. They say the recent ruling against entrapment of prohibition law violators was only the first step in the new direction. They expect others soon.

The inner councils of the court are one thing in Washington that is kept secret. It would be contempt of court to disclose them. One secret of court procedure does not appear to come in that category. It is that Mr. Hughes has the duty in those councils of designating the associate justice who writes each majority opinion. In the entrapment case he designated HIMSELF. He also named himself to write the similarly liberal decision in connection with the oil combines.

If Mr. Hughes carries the two points in these cases into future decisions, we shall shortly have some new and more liberal law in this country.

Lawyers in the highest Washington places are enthusiastic about the way the chief justice appears to be carrying the court. They expect that Mr. Hughes is out to close his career with a brilliant record. They look forward to it eagerly.

After all supreme court judges are human like everyone else.

BEER

Speaker Garner cracked the whip quietly until it hurt in the house beer fight. He was determined not to have another one of those sales tax or repeal failures.

Orders were so strict that no wet Democrat was allowed to go near the railroad station. Several were called back from there. The vote was moved up from Thursday to Wednesday because Garner was not sure of holding all the wets there for another day. They were tugging to get home for Christmas.

In the end he got more beer votes than he counted on.

DRYS

The dry lobbyists largely centered their confidential activities in getting the preachers back home to wire and wire again to the congressmen. The world will never know how hot they made it for some congressmen to vote for beer. Many of the boys had a wilted collar when they voted yes. The result of the activities of the good persons is shown in the fact that 64 Democrats refused to support the party platform.

REPEAL

All these public promises for speed on beer in the senate must not be taken too seriously. The dry minority had no rights in the house. It will have plenty of opportunity for amendment and delay in the senate. The rules give it to them.

The wets generally are not very excited about it. They are afraid that if they put beer through first they will have the prohibition card before the horse. Their confidential strategy is to let the dries strangle the beer bill for a while. They will be pushing repeal. This sub-rosa setup may have to be changed if the public clamor for beer gets too loud.

MELLOWED

Mr. Hoover has partially melted in his dealings with the Washington newspapermen.

He allowed them to designate one man to be with the secret service each day following him on his southern vacation. None have ever been allowed that close before. On his fishing trip last summer there was a scene because they hired another boat to follow him.

In other ways Mr. Hoover is acting more like his old self as Washington knew him before he became president. But he has not held a conference with the press since early in September.

R. F. C.

There is strong unexpressed dissent in congress against the Norris suggestion for an R.F.C. investigation.

Ground enough exists for the inquiry. The corporation figures are about all that is needed in the way of an excuse. Out of a billion and seventy millions lent so far the banks, railroads and insurance companies got a billion and twenty-five millions.

Around eighty-one millions were authorized for self-liquidating loans in October. Only $360,000 was disbursed. This is the class of loans that put men to work.

However, there is a general underlying feeling that the corporation is doing as well as could be expected. Furthermore Senator Couzens has investigated the corporation's private reports thoroughly and is not warm for an investigation.

NOTES

The Norman Davis report to President Hoover on Europe was much more pessimistic than anyone cared to say. Chief Justice Hughes has put new rules into effect on the court for petitions and has radically amended practices to speed things up. The result is that the court is up with its docket for the first time in years. There are many people who believe Chief Justice Marshall did more in establishing our present governmental system than Jefferson.

son, Hamilton or Washington. That shows how important the chief justice is behind the scenes. Each newspaperman at the treasury department with a medalion on which his profile is engraved. It was a Christmas present. The boys say they will use them as paper weights.

PLUMS

Chairman Jim Hurley is getting to grips with the enormous patronage problem he will have on his hands after March 4. He has hired a corps of filing experts who are preparing an elaborate cross index system of candidates for every conceivable job. One test that will be applied is that of pre-convention loyalty to Roosevelt. Belated bandwagon jumpers have small chance for plums.

Patronage will be scientifically used as a whip to hold senators and congressmen in line for Roosevelt policies. Job recommendations from legislative quarters will be measured in the scales of the sponsors' regularity in following the leader.

Applications are now coming in strong from the south and west. The south is anxious to make up for lost time since 1929, but the west has no intention of taking a back seat. The claims for services rendered are already piling mountain high.

One quirk is that so far most of the applications have been for the lower salaried jobs. It looks as if some of the boys have been discussing pay dirt possibilities with present incumbents.

McKEE

Acting Mayor McKee is losing no opportunity to retaliate for Curry's "nuisance" tactics. He recently named a city magistrate in the teeth of violent protest from organization leaders. Also he made strenuous efforts to induce Lewis E. Lawes—warden of Sing Sing prison—to accept the job of commissioner of corrections at $15,000 a year. This would have been a master stroke from the publicity slant. Lawes declined because he could get no assurance from Tammany officials that he would be continued in office after O'Brien's inauguration.

LONG

Inside New York City tell you that Huey Long has dug his political grave by his maneuvering of Louisiana finances. They say it will be all over but the shouting when Louisiana taxpayers wake up to what he has done to them. So far he has kept the figures secret but the total debt of the state is now around 200 million dollars—over half of which is floating debt. It will take about three generations of earnest tax-paying to get the state out of hock.

TECHNOCRACY

Wall Street has suddenly acquired a keen interest in Technocracy on the news that thousands of people are taking it seriously. Naturally the first object is to discredit it but most attempts in this direction are based on Howard Scott's personal record. Richard Whitney took official cognizance of the organization in his annual message although he did not mention it by name. His remarks were part of a general plan to convey the idea that it doesn't about to much.

But there are high authorities who dissent from the belittling campaign. They figure that the premises of Technocracy as related to permanent unemployment and the debt burden can hardly be laughed off. They believe that Technocracy has at least performed a valuable service in emphasizing the need for a drastic readjustment of labor hours.

Those who are sympathetic with the fact-finding aims of Technocracy are disconcerted at the premature publicity it is getting. They liken it to shoving an actor out on the stage before he is ready to do his stuff and the audience cannot make up its mind whether to applaud or to hand out the razzer.

The more far-sighted view also holds that it is stupid to give uncompromising opposition to a movement which has such an obvious appeal for the student and post-student type. Keen observers say that the bottle-necking of youth with an absence of employment for trained energies is apt to become a serious factor in the situation.

YOUTH

Up to four years ago graduates of high schools and colleges tended to disperse into different activities. Now they tend to stick together with the common bond of unemployment.

These young people are well fitted to act as non-commissioned officers in the army of unemployed. There is plenty of good officer material among former executives. As yet there is no commanding general, but no such army looks indefinitely for a leader without having the leader turn up. At present there is a slackening of tension because of the feeling that Roosevelt may be capable of providing adequate leadership.

If he doesn't succeed the situation may grow critical. The very best source agree that American unemployed cannot be expected to live on charity indefinitely and that any program which does not anticipate their needs and ultimate demands is headed for trouble. # HOLDS LACK OF DISCOVERY AS OLD AGE SIGN

An inspirational address, based on a New Year's theme, was delivered to members and guests of the Santa Ana Kiwanis club yesterday noon in Ketter's cafe by the Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The speaker was introduced by Bob Fernandez, who presided as chairman of the day.

At the close of the meeting, Fred Newcomb, retiring president of the club, turned the club over to the incoming president, Dr. Harry Huffman. Both made brief speeches.

The Rev. Mr. McFarland read many inspiring poems and told a number of stories to illustrate points in his talk. He advised his listeners to live along the line of discovery during the new year. "The trouble with many of us, growing, maturing men," he said, "is that we lived the early part of our lives along the lines of discovery but later we stopped discovering things."

"We stopped developing power within ourselves. We stopped discovering new things in ourselves and in our friends, new possibilities in our work. We became stale. We do not grow old because of rheumatism, but because we lose our zest for the old things of life. Many of us live our lives as though we are sliding down a toboggan already built for us; as if there were no new trails to blaze. If we keep going down the same trail we will always end in the same place."

FIGHTS REPEAL

Throwing legal wrenches into the machinery for repeal of the eighteenth amendment is the job of Edward B. Dunford, below, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league. Dunford, lieutenant of the late Wayne B. Wheeler, shuns conspicuous leadership of the dry fight, but if the repeal amendment gets tied up in a constitutional tangle he's likely to be chiefly responsible.

LOCAL CAVALRY TROOP HOLDS FIRST DRILL

Headquarters troop, Third Regiment, California Lancers held its first drill last night at Hillcrest Riding academy in Fullerton, under direction of Capt. W. R. Mattek, of Long Beach, state liaison officer for the organization.

Organized last week as the nucleus of a regiment of California's colorful militia organization, enlistments to full strength, upon completion of the organization of Headquarters troop, other troops for the first and second squadrons will be formed in the county.

Headquarters troop of the second squadron will be given the oath of enlistment tonight at Wayman Johnson's riding academy in Laguna Beach. This troop will be taken into the regiment as an almost completed unit. According to Capt. Mattek 35 men have signed the company roll and will be sworn in. The troop also will hold its first drill.

With Headquarters troop of the second squadron completed, officers of the state and regimental staffs will meet with men of San Clemente and San Juan Capistrano who have requested organization of troops there.

Membership in the Third Regiment, California Lancers is open to men between the ages of 18 and 45 years of high standing in their communities as citizens. Applications for enlistments are being received by Lieut. Paul Vissman, county recruiting officer, at 1327 North Ross street and at the Hillcrest Riding academy on Wednesday nights, which tentatively have been set as drill night for the first squadron.

REMOVES OLD TREES
ORANGE, Dec. 29.—S. B. Edwards, local rancher, is removing some 51-year-old orange trees from his ranch on Collins avenue, which were planted, he stated, by I. V. Collins, one of the early orange growers of the community. Mr. Edwards states that the trees are not so very old as compared with other in this vicinity. Much older trees are still in bearing near Orange, he says.

SERVICES FOR PRAYER WEEK ARE ANNOUNCED

Churches of Santa Ana will unite next week in the annual "Week of Prayer" service to be held January 2 to 6 in Spurgeon Memorial Methodist church. This annual church event is sponsored by the Ministerial Association of Santa Ana, of which the Rev. E. W. Matz, pastor of the First Evangelical church, is president.

Services will be held nightly during the week at the Spurgeon Memorial church with a minister from one of the neighboring cities delivering the sermon.

On Monday night the sermon will be by the Rev. Ray C. Harker, pastor of the Methodist White Temple, Anaheim. The Rev. Mr. Matz will preside and will be assisted by the Rev. O. W. Reinius, pastor of the Richmond Avenue M. E. church, and the Rev. T. W. Ringland, pastor of the United Brethren church.

The Rev. C. M. Aker, pastor of the Spurgeon M. E. church, will preside at the Tuesday night meeting and will be assisted by the Rev. Harry Evan Owens, of the First Baptist church, and the Rev. Samuel Edgar, of the Reformed Presbyterian church. The sermon that night will be by the Rev. Virgil K. Ledbetter, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, Anaheim.

Wednesday night the Rev. Robert Burns McAulay, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Orange, will deliver the sermon. The Rev. O. Scott McFarland, of the First Presbyterian church, will preside, assisted by the Rev. Geo. A. Warner, of the First M. E. church, and the Rev. C. D. Hicks, of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church.

The sermon for the Thursday night session will be by the Rev. George F. Tinsley, pastor of the First Christian church of Fullerton. The meeting that night will be presided over by the Rev. E. M. Robb, of the Free Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. F. A. Flora, of the Church of the Brethren and the Rev. C. F. Martin, of the Orange Avenue Christian church.

The sermon for the closing session, to be delivered Friday night, will be by the Rev. J. A. McDonold, pastor of the Bayshore Congregational church of Long Beach. The Rev. W. S. Buchanan, of the First Christian church, will be in charge of the services on that night, and will be assisted by Rev. Perry F. Schrock, of the First Congregational church, and the Rev. G. E. Waddle, of the Church of the Nazarene.

CONGRESS FACES HARD TASK IN ATTEMPTING TO BALANCE BUDGET; DEFICIT MOUNTING

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—How do you balance a budget? Answer: You don't!

Doubtless the job has been done, somewhere at some time. But in Washington the claim of its achievement is a polite euphemism and the annual attempt at it apparently is only the establishment of a bright, shining goal for which all right-thinking statesmen should aim, more or less blindly.

In Washington the theory of budget-balancing has come by common consent to mean a pay-as-you-go system, a squaring of revenues and expenditures without any aid from bond issues. That objective, despite all the clamor here last spring, was missed by a wide margin for this fiscal year, which is piling up a third consecutive large deficit. And only heroic measures by the special session Roosevelt is expected to call, it now appears, can avoid another large failure at budget-balancing for 1933-34.

One school of thought holds it isn't necessary to balance the budget, especially since federal credit is still proving itself healthy through the enormous oversubscriptions to treasury obligations. But a reasonable approach to balance will be necessary before long, either through a business revival or drastic economies. The national debt has increased $3,390,000,000 in the two previous fiscal years, thanks to deficits, and this year is likely to add $1,500,000,000 more. That can hardly go on indefinitely.

The fact that no near-balance has been or is being achieved is due primarily to the federal tendency, especially in congress, to avoid both new taxes and real economies.

This reflects the widespread disagreement as to where taxes and economies should be imposed. All major proposals are matters of heated controversy involving congress, the White House and many large, influential groups. But the failure to balance for 1932-33 and the probability that there will be no preciseness about current and near future attempts must also be laid in part to the notoriously cockeyed mistakes of the treasury department in estimating future receipts from given sources.

The fact that some of the war debtors have defaulted and that all further payments are very doubtful is a complicating factor. But the failure of congress even theoretically to balance and the tendency of the treasury to overestimate enormously its prospective revenues from both new and old taxes casts a somewhat absurd as-

REASONS FOR BELIEVE QUIZ ADVERTISING IS RE-OPENED ARE ANNOUNCED BY GRAND JURY

CLEVELAND, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Numerous queries asking why a large and firmly established financial institution continues advertising after its reputation is assured were answered for the Cleveland Trust Company, one of the largest in the country, by Vice-President Edwin Baxter. He set forth the following reasons:

1. All banks that have grown and flourished have been aggressive and persistent advertisers. There must be some relation between their advertising and their growth.
2. We are not addressing a fixed audience, but a parade.
3. We think we owe it to our customers to keep telling them about the possible uses of the bank in their advantage, so that we may be of the utmost possible service.
4. It increases a customer's satisfaction and pride in his bank to know that the name of the institution, its character, its deals and the scope of its service, continue to be household words. And the best way to do this is through constant advertising.
5. We aim to hold up standards before the public that will make our own employees not only proud of their association, but always conscious of their obligation to deliver the kind of service we offer, and to live up to the standards that we set for ourselves, in our advertising. This may be a by-product of advertising but valuable.
6. Repetition of impressions is a most essential factor in producing results, and more essential in advertising than any other factor.

Investigation of an alleged drunken driving case dismissed several months ago in Anaheim, is believed to have been re-opened yesterday by the Orange county grand jury, sitting in extra session. Intimation that the investigation, believed to have started Tuesday, was re-opened yesterday was given when John Stoddard, arrested several months ago on the drunken driving count, appeared as a witness before the inquisitorial body.

Following Stoddard's appearance before the grand jury, Dr. Emmett Raitt, Santa Ana physician who, according to jail records, examined Stoddard the night he was arrested, was summoned as a witness. He was followed into the jury room by L. E. Ross, shorthand reporter who took the transcript of evidence at Stoddard's preliminary hearing in Anaheim justice court.

Indications that an investigation of the case had been started were first given Tuesday morning when the proprietress of a Buena Park cafe, where Stoddard is said to have created a disturbance prior to his arrest, appeared as a witness. She was followed by officers of the California highway patrol who took Stoddard in custody and by Dr. Harry Huffman, Santa Ana physician who also was called to examine Stoddard, and Justice of the Peace Charles Kuechel before whom Stoddard was given his preliminary hearing and who dismissed charges against him.

Charming Country Home Welcomes Quill Pen At Yule Party

For their annual holiday party and gift exchange, Quill Pen members had the pleasure of meeting Tuesday night with Mrs. Clarence McClintock in her interesting home at Fairview, where the activity with which Yule decorations had been planned, heightened the festive nature of the evening.

There was the customary club program to which Mrs. Maude Goff contributed a clever tale of hitch-hikers, Mrs. J. U. Vian read the opening of a new story, "Four Winds," and Mrs. Frank was asked some of her "Marcelle" stories. The remainder of the evening was given over to more informal pleasures, which included the lighting of the Christmas tree and distribution of gifts in the club's annual exchange, with Miss Maurine McClintock, young daughter of the hostess, as impromptu Santa Claus.

Refreshments were served to the prevailing Christmas mood, for home-made cranberry ice cream was served in small Mexican decorated flower pots each containing a miniature tree; Christmas cookies, (baked by Miss Maurine) were in tree and star forms, the latter bearing lighted candles, with nuts, candy and coffee to complete the attractively arranged trays.

A guest to enjoy the informal evening, was Miss Margaret Kerr who is down from Mills to spend the holidays with the Albert Harveys and who accompanied Mrs. Harvey to the club party. Mrs. Herman Reuter came out from Hollywood to attend, while Santa Ana members present included Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Marshall Harlowe, Mrs. Blanche Brown, Mrs. Frank Was, Mrs. Maude Goff, Miss Verna Wells, Miss Lella Watson, Mrs. N. E. Wells, Mrs. J. U. Vian, Mrs. Nell Stanley, Mrs. Roy Winchester and the hostess, Mrs. McClintock.

Country Club Diners Christmas Guests Of Roy Langley

A Christmas dinner affair given in the Santa Ana Country Club Wednesday evening was that tendered by Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Langley, whose hospitality was welcomed no less because of the party's delay of a day or so beyond the Yuletide holiday.

Seasonal appointments prevailed at the Country club, where a table sparkling with a tinselled Christmas tree centerpiece and a Santa Claus behind a window prancing on imitation snow held the admiring attention of guests. Joke gifts selected by the hosts and humorously appropriate to each guest were arranged on the table, joke placecards marking each cover.

The entire party was escorted by Mr. and Mrs. Langley from the club to the Langley home at 1331 Cypress street following the dinner for an evening of cards. At the residence Christmas trimmings were in further evidence in red candles and poinsettias. Bridge awards were presented after play to Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Schindmeyer, two of a party of guests which included Messrs. and Mesdames W. F. Mitchell, Ben Osterman, George Osterman, Ralph W. Cole and the hosts.

Announcements

The Southern California Photographers' association will have a post-Christmas party tonight at 8 o'clock in the home of Miss Mary Smart, 720 North Main street. Each member is to bring a gift for exchange.

Great Grandchildren Share Yule Dinner In Nicky Home

Three great grandchildren, seven grandchildren and four children of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Nicky were assembled in their home at 519 Rush street Christmas day to participate in the 2 o'clock feast with which Mr. and Mrs. Nicky celebrated the Yuletide.

A jolly Christmas scene was contrived for the center of the table with the aid of miniature Santa Claus, reindeer, a tiny Christmas tree and red candles.

A great evergreen, erected in the living room, drew the entire family following the dinner, when the many packages hung from its branches were apportioned among the several members.

United for the annual holiday were the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Nicky; their daughters, Mrs. E. B. Trago, Mrs. Charles Bowler, Mrs. Genevieve Spencer, and their son, Clyde Nicky, Los Angeles; their grandchildren, Eugene Trago and Dr. Jack Congdon, Los Angeles; Mrs. Paul Wallace, Franklin Nicky Jr., and Miss Mildred Congdon, Santa Ana; and John Vernon Spencer and Miss Virginia Spencer, Eagle Rock, and their great grandchildren, Franklin Nicky III, Calvin Nicky and Billy Wallace, all of Santa Ana, Orlene Trago, Mrs. E. B. Trago, Paul Wallace, Santa Ana; Charles Bowler, Ventura; Mrs. Clyde Nicky, Los Angeles; Walter Congdon, San Juan Capistrano, and Mrs. Jack Congdon, Los Angeles.

Week is Enlivened by Pleasant Party in "Our Village"

Pounding ocean breakers formed an accompaniment to a very happy party held Tuesday evening in the home of Miss Eliza Johnson at Laguna Beach. Baskets of colorful, eastern and Christmas decorations made the interior of this interesting home even more pleasant. Miss Johnson has a day time school for private pupils and also teaches two night sessions in Santa Ana high school and Willard junior high school.

Mrs. Ethel Durbin gave an outline of "The Other Wise Man." Miss Brunson played two piano selections, and little Miss Talitha Dahl gave a toe dance number while playing on her violin, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Guy Belcher. A track meet with sides competing under green and orange colors, proved hilarious. Each one was given a booklet containing a list of subjects ranging from the effects of gum chewing to Technocracy. Couples were formed and each was given two minutes for discussion, when a bell was rung to announce a change in partners. Winners in this contest were Mrs. Belcher and Ralph Ruhl. A desk calendar and pad was presented to each.

A large fern was given to Miss Johnson from the Tuesday evening class in appreciation of her hospitality. Elaborate refreshments were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Brunson, Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Dart, Mr. and Mrs. John Durbin, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Laub, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dahl, Mrs. Charles Carlson, Mrs. Guy Belcher, Mrs. Walter Dunlap, Mrs. W. G. Knox, Mrs. E. B. Walbridge, Mrs. E. H. Whites, Ralph Ruhl, Miss Brunson, Miss Talitha Dahl and the members of the household, Mrs. Griffin, Miss Griffin, and the teacher of the classes, Miss Eliza Johnson.

Kohler Residence Gaily Adorned for Yule Family Party

A transformation was working within the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kohler of 1601 Wilbur street for the Christmas Day tiding held there this week end when relatives assembled for the annual holiday dinner. The seasonal decorations evident throughout the house were repeated on the dining table, where tall red tapers were distinctive features of the Yule appointments.

Invited to share the turkey feast were Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Kohler and children, Edna, Raymond and Lee; Mrs. Elizabeth Kohler and Wayne Shutt, all of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Warner and son, Donald, of Covina; and the hosts' sons, Harold and Floyd Kohler.

Job's Daughters Join With De Molays in Installation

Job's Daughters and De Molays combined impressive installation ceremonies Tuesday evening in Masonic temple, when new officers of the two organizations assumed their duties.

The Daughters contributed color and formal beauty to the ceremony with their evening frocks and elegant floral corsages. Miss Margaret Sawyer, installed as queen, carried a large cluster of mixed flowers and Tailsman roses. Miss Ruth Baker, installed as senior princess, and Miss Betty Nedergall, junior princess, had bouquets of mixed hues. Other officers wore corsages of gardenias and sweet peas, while the installation staff wore gardenias.

Taking office with Miss Sawyer, Miss Baker and Miss Nedergall were guide, Ruth Dohmer; marshal, Frankie McDonald; chaplain, Marjorie McDonald; treasurer, Mary Majors; recorder, Lorraine Holmes; Jean Paxton; junior custodian, Fern Anderson; senior custodian, Dora Perkins; inner guard, Mary Kettler; outer guard, Charlotte McCausland; first messenger, Eloise Schrier; second messenger, Mary Alice Russey; third messenger, Florence Wasson; fourth messenger, Dorothy White; fifth messenger, Virginia Mustel.

Installing officers were Miss Juliette Taylor, retiring queen; Juliette Taylor, Van Meter, chaplain; Betty Smith, guide; Janet Forbes, marshal and Winifred Conklin, recorder. Special guests introduced included Mrs. B. H. Baker, council guardian; William J. Dean, associate guardian; Mrs. George Wheeler, secretary; and Mrs. Leslie Pearson, treasurer. A pretty ceremonial was made of the presentation to Miss Turner, of the past queen's jewel by Miss Betty Smith, also a past queen of Bethel No. 45.

De Molay Officers
In the De Molay rite, administered by Roy Wheeler, a past master councilor, with Burdette Heintz acting as marshal, Al Bergstetter was inducted into the office of master councilor. Installed with him were Garth Olsen, senior councilor, Jack Wright, junior councilor; John Schrier, senior deacon; Hervey Sutherland, Jr., junior deacon; Jack Scheel, senior steward; Russ Mathews, junior steward; Winifred Heas, marshal; Clarence Rousseau, orator; Clarence Lewis, scribe; Leonard Thompson, treasurer; George Chaplain, sentinel; John Birt, chaplain; Don Parks, standard bearer; Homer Edwards, almoner; Bud Taylor, Christy Demetriou, John Hoy and Don Lentz, preceptors.

Dr. Roy S. Horton serves as "Dad" advisor to the chapter, with an advisory council composed of John H. Shaw, chaplain, Roscoe G. Hewitt, Albert S. Hill, M. Burr Wellington, and one member yet to be named. There were various special Masonic guests to share in the interests of the double event.

Social Features
With the completion of the joint rites, the two chapters and their guests joined in a pleasant dance for which music was furnished by Bill Heger's orchestra.

Gracious Tribute Paid Elk Official's Wife During Local Visit

While Santa Ana Elks were welcoming Floyd E. Thompson of Chicago, grand exalted ruler of the B. P. O. E., wives of local officers were royally feting the ruler's wife, who was made honor guest at a beautifully appointed dinner given at the Santa Ana Country club last night.

Mrs. Thompson is accompanying her husband on a tour of the Elks lodges of this section and departed today with Mr. Thompson and an escort of several Santa Ana Elks and their wives for San Diego, to attend a lodge meeting there tonight. Also complimented last evening was Mrs. Robert Reddington of Los Angeles, wife of a member of Los Angeles lodge No. 99, an official escort of Mrs. Thompson during the Chicagoans' local tour.

Dinner decorations were as appealing as the table's setting on the country club hearth before a great open fire. A centerpiece, rounded in shape as was the table, was fashioned of maidenhair fern and pansies, the blue note of the latter being reiterated in the corsages of violets and gardenias placed for the several guests.

The fact that thirteen women were seated at tables appeared to detract in no way from the merriment of the dinner, abounded at its conclusion when guests and their hostesses departed for Santa Ana, where seats had been reserved at a downtown theater.

Supervising last night's court-guests were Mrs. E. R. Majors, wife of the Santa Ana secretary, and Mrs. Gilbert P. Campbell, wife of the exalted ruler. Other officers' wives assuming hostess roles were Mesdames Harry Hyde, Robert C. Currie, Edward Vegeley, Don Jerome, Clare Johnson, Frank Was, William McKay and Vinton Motz.

J. S. Hills Are Hosts Through Christmas Day and Monday

A prolonged celebration was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hill over the Christmas week end, festivities continuing until Monday night when their son and daughter-in-law and small grandson, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hill, and son, Herbert Jr., of 518 Sunset drive, Whittier, returned home after participating in the Santa Ana family's gaieties.

Christmas morning was spent by the Whittier visitors in the Hill home, where merriment centered upon a Christmas tree following breakfast. They were guests at a noon dinner and gift exchange in the S. J. Hales residence in this city, returning to remain Sunday evening and Monday with Mr. Hill's parents. A brother of J. S. Hill, Bert Hill, brought his family to spend Monday afternoon and evening in the Santa Ana's home, where welcoming members of the J. S. Hill family included, in addition to the hosts, their children, Betty, Billy and Marjorie Alice.

Other guests at the Christmas feast prepared by the Hills were Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln J. Carden and Mrs. Helen Carden Johnson of this city.

Sorority Dinner Dance Preceded by Rites Of Initiation

Half a dozen Sigma Tau Psi pledges found special delight in the belated Christmas gifts which they received Monday night, as a feature of a formal ritualistic service held in the home of Miss Alice Majors, 1811 North Flower street, by which they were received into full membership in the sorority.

The initiates were the Misses Mary Jane Sturgeon, Mary Emil Majors, Jeanne House, Alice Hanson, Betty Barkman and Mrs. C. Wynnton Hoyle, and the "Christmas gifts" were the handsome gold link bracelets with sorority crests, which the chapter presented them. This pleasant feature was preliminary to the dinner dance which members and their escorts later enjoyed at the Roosevelt in Hollywood, the young men calling at the Majors home and the entire party motoring to the city in a group.

The party was strictly formal, and the girls wore charming gowns of filmy chiffons, lustrous satins and chiffon velvets. Dinner tables arranged in E form, were illuminated with scarlet tapers in gold candleabra, while long baskets of Christmas blossoms and greenery blazed the full length of each section.

Created place cards were written for the Misses Mary Read, Winifred Johnson, Doris Goff, Eloise Wright, Jean Rowland, Betty Rowland, Louise Lock, Carol House, Lucille Conaway, Agneta Wheeler, Alyce Majors, Lucy Holmes, Jean Peacock, Beth Westcott, Mary Jane Sturgeon, Mary Emil Majors, Jeanne House, Alice Hanson, Betty Barkman, Messrs. and Mesdames Roy Griset, Edmund Linsendard, Herbert Hill, C. Wynnton Hoyle, and Messrs. Ward Gillilan, Tom Jentges, Bruce Vegely, Bob Gardner, David Hill, Charles Oxarart, Gordon Mender, Hal Dunham, Elsie Borchart, Spencer Richardson, Bill Hewitt, Frederick Seeley, Don Lewis, Billy Hanson, Hamilton Smith, Bob Smith, Stanley Wheeler, Howard Hales and Don Harwood.

Allender Family Circle Completed at Happy Holiday Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. George Allender had the happiest Christmas gift that parents can ask when they were privileged to have all their sons and daughters together beneath the home roof, for the first time in 19 years.

This joyous celebration began Christmas Eve with the exchange of gifts around a brightly decorated and lighter tree which gladdened the Allender home at 2021 Bush street. It continued through the following day when the children of the hosts, with their husbands or wives, were assembled around a candle-light table for the roast turkey and other delicious fare prepared by Mrs. Allender.

Two tiny grandchildren have made their appearance since the previous holiday season. Eeny Jr., baby son of the Elwayne ("Eeny") Wilcoxes, and Sharon, small daughter of the Howard Merriells. Cause for rejoicing also was found in the fact that Edward F. Allender, who has been in the Navy for 17 years, is now stationed at San Pedro, so he found it an easy matter to be present. Group pictures were taken of the family circle to serve as souvenirs of a memorable occasion.

In the party with the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. George Allender, were Mr. and Mrs. John N. Woolcombes, Mr. and Mrs. Elwayne Wilcox and baby son, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Merrill and baby daughter, John Allender, and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Carothers, all of this city; Mr. and Mrs. William Flack and children, Billy and Eugene, and Miss Ella Allender, San Luis Obispo; Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Allender and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Allender, San Pedro.

1932 Executives Are Guests in Home of Miss Turner

As a final gesture of appreciation for the work accomplished by officers of Job's Daughters this year under the direction of Miss Florence Turner, as queen, Miss Turner opened her home one evening recently to the retiring executives of this organization.

Officers arrived at the Turner home, 706 Spurgeon street, to discover the rooms cheery with Christmas trimmings. Red and green candles were prevalent, other appointments being of appropriate color and form. The evening's prizes eventually went to Miss Charlotte McCausland, high, and to Miss Ruth Baker, consoling, before refreshments of Christmas pudding, coffee and cake were passed among guests.

Miss Turner's official corps has included Mrs. Ben H. Baker, guardian; William J. Dean, associate guardian; the Misses A. McDonald, Dorothy White, Mildred Pearson, Eloise Schrier, Florence Wasson, Jean DuBois, Charlotte McCausland, Florence Turner, Ruth Baker, Betty Nedergall, Lorraine Wheeler, in addition to Miss Margaret Sawyer, newly elected queen, Mrs. William J. Dean and Mrs. J. H. Turner, mother of the hostess, completed the guest group.

School Friends Renew Associations at Bower Tea

Reunions this season were not limited to family gatherings, as was attested by the hospitality extended by Miss Helen Bower one afternoon during the past week when she entertained for a dozen former school friends, home on Christmas vacation from colleges in this section and in northern California. The party, which took the form of a tea, was given in her home at 1324 Bush street.

Silver and red were pleasingly combined in the tea table's decoration, slender red candles in silver holders flanking a handsome basket of vivid poinsettias. Presiding at this board was Mrs. John H. Bower, mother of the hostess, while further assistance was lent by Miss Jeanne Scott, who aided with the serving of the tea menu.

Vacationists accepting Miss Bower's invitation were the Misses Armine Crawford and Sarah ("Dolly") Boyle, of the University of California at Berkeley; Helen Slabaugh, University of Southern California; Betty Dunton and Julia Street, Pomona college; Marion Cruickshank, Chouinard art school, Los Angeles; Catherine Walbridge, Lorna Allen, Verna Helm, Barbara and Louise Rurup, Mary Helen Bell, Patricia Kennedy and Miriam Samuelson, all past or present students at Santa Ana Junior college, where Miss Bower also is registered.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

CHILDREN SHOULD HELP CHOOSE CLOTHES

The child who is never allowed to have a word in choosing his clothing has my heartfelt sympathy. It makes me wonder if adults are even a step ahead of the ape in their ability to remember the small heartaches of their own childhood days.

I have never forgotten how humiliated I was, as a small girl, when my mother insisted that I must wear an apron over my pretty school dress. Not another girl was wearing an apron that year, and let me tell you, I can keenly remember the agonized humiliation that apron caused me.

What difference does it make if cords do get filthy dirty? It's the style for that light-headed age, let them indulge to their heart's content, you can keep them clean underneath, and that's what counts.

What difference does it make if your girl insists on wearing a long bob. She thinks she's lovely, a potential Garbo, no matter how straggly the bob. She's in style, and she's happy.

It is human nature to live in herds and to follow the law of the pack. Look at that side of the question before you set your foot down arbitrarily on what your child shall wear, and when.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Sweet Buns

3 cups milk
2 cakes yeast
1/2 cup tepid water
2 small cups sugar
Flour to make stiff batter
1/2 cup melted butter
2 scant teaspoons salt
Nutmeg and cinnamon
Add butter, shortening and sugar to the milk and soda. While the milk is cooling beat up the yeast cakes and dissolve in the half-cup of tepid water. When the milk has cooled to blood warmth add the dissolved yeast and enough flour to make a very stiff batter. Do not knead but cover and set in a warm spot to raise. It will require about two hours for the sponge to double in bulk, then stir it down, add more flour, turn onto the board and knead briskly for five minutes.

Divide the dough in three parts, one of which may be smaller than the other two. This small one will be used to make a braided coffee cake for breakfast.

Cut off small pieces of dough (3) and roll into long thin ropes. Fasten the ropes of dough and plait into a loose braid. Arrange on a buttered baking sheet, stick a few slivers of citron between the braids and let rise until very light. Bake in a quick oven, brush with a thin hot sugar syrup and brown quickly.

The second part can be rolled out to fit a pie tin, covered with 2 tablespoons fine crumbs mixed with butter, brown sugar and crushed nuts. This makes a marvelous coffee cake also.

The third part may be used to make cinnamon currant rolls. Cream together sugar and butter, have the mixture very soft. Roll out the dough, spread with the sugar mixture, scatter a handful of dried, washed currants over the dough, roll up, cut, and raise until very light. Bake these buns in a medium oven.

The full recipe has caloric totalling almost 5000. To get down to smaller figures: estimate each bun or roll at 150 calories. These are energy makers.

Friday: Baked Eggs with Riced Potatoes.

ANN MEREDITH.

DRAMA-DEBATE GIVEN MONDAY IN EL MODENA

EL MODENA, Dec. 29.—"The Aftermath," a dialogue-drama-debate, will be given by Hall and Summers January 2 at 7:30 o'clock. It was decided at the meeting of the W. C. T. U. yesterday afternoon. The debate will be held at El Modena Friends church. The musical program will be in charge of Mrs. Elwood Padlock.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Luella Sondericker. The main business of the meeting was to elect a new president on account of the resignation of Miss Grace Lentz, who has accepted a position in welfare work, and cannot remain in the office of W. C. T. U. president. At the last meeting Miss Lentz's resignation was accepted with regrets, and a nominating committee appointed. This committee, Mrs. Etta Adams, Mrs. Anna Barnett and Mrs. Louise Smith, made their report, and it was accepted. Mrs. Luella Sondericker was unanimously elected as president for the rest of this year.

Two violin solos, "The First Smile" and "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," were given by Melvin Hodson. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Bert Hodson. John Skiles sang "Be Loyal" and "De History ob de World." Miss Mary Burchell recited "Bobbie and the New Baby" and "Luncheon."

Mrs. Sondericker, the hostess, assisted by her little daughters, Loretta and June, and Mary Burchell, served tea and cake with whipped cream. Those present were Mrs. Anna Dickerson, Mrs. Henrietta Reep, Mrs. Clara Jones, Mrs. Clara Hodson, Mrs. Sadie Skiles, Mrs. Manie Settler, Mrs. Etta Adams, Mrs. Anna Barnett, Mrs. Lundblade, Mrs. Ethel Brice and Mrs. Daisy Hadley.

Churches To Hold Joint Watch Rites

ORANGE, Dec. 29.—Free Methodist churches of Anaheim, Garden Grove and Santa Ana are to join with members of the Orange Free Methodist church in holding a watch night service Saturday evening beginning at 8 o'clock in the local church, West Almond avenue and Lemon streets.

Speaker for the occasion will be the Rev. W. R. Cane of Pasadena, formerly of Kansas, a noted evangelist. There will be special music during the evening. The Rev. P. C. Rose, pastor of the Orange church, will preside over the program.

Young people of the four churches joining in the watch night services, held a social meeting Tuesday evening in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Rose, West Almond avenue. Miss Martha Rose, daughter of the home, was hostess.

About 40 were present to take part in the affair, which included congregational singing, games, etc. Refreshments were served. Among those attending were the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Watson of the Anaheim church and the Rev. and Mrs. David McLeod of the Garden Grove church.

THE TINYMIES

Said Scouty, "Well, we've had real fun, but this fine airplane will not run by simply pulling at the big propeller. No siree!"

"It's gas that makes the engine go and where we'll get some I don't know. What good the plane is to us now I really cannot see."

Then Duncy said, "You make me dread! Why, all of us were quite inspired to think that we would soon be sailing high up in the air."

"We will not let our fine trip pass. There must be some place to get gas. Let's run and ask old Santa. I am sure he will not care."

"Oh, no," cried Copy. "We must not wake Santa 'cause he needs a lot of sleep. We'll find some other way! Let's ask an elf, instead."

"Here comes one now, Geo. someone say, 'Hello!' so he will find this way." The Tinkies shouted. Then the elf began to nod his head.

He ran right up and joined the bunch and shortly said, "I have a hunch that you lads want some gasoline." "You're right," brave Scouty cried.

"Each one of us will gladly thank you if you'll try to fill our tank. Then we'll rise in our plane and take a very lovely ride."

"Well, let me think," the elf said. "Ah, ha! A thought's popped through my head. Not far from here there lives a very fine old magic man."

"I know it will thrill all of you when you find out what he can do."

How We Conquered the Hard Times of the 1870s

By JOHN W. LOVE

THE best reason for believing we would recover from this depression has always been the fact that America has recovered from so many depressions. From 30 or more, if you want to go back to when the Puritans overdid their real estate boom in Massachusetts colony. A country that has regularly recovered from more depressions than it can usually keep track of has pretty good reason to think it would recover from at least one more, even though that one happens to have been the deepest.

The severity of this depression has rather discouraged people who believed the nation was making progress in stabilizing its finance and industries. When they look back over the country's monotonous record of prosperity and depression and prosperity again, about all they can see is some improvement over the financial panics we used to have.

We had no financial panic this time, nothing of the sort that the country went through in 1837, 1857, 1873, and so on. We had supposed that if we could keep from having financial panics we could escape depressions, but something seems to have been wrong with that dope.

Let us look back over some of the history of the United States to see how we got out of another bad depression.

THERE is, for instance, one of the three worst the country has ever been through, the depression which followed the great panic of 1873.

The long "hard times" of the 1870s were, with two exceptions, more severe than those of any other period in this country's history. These were the depression of the middle 1890s and the depression of the early 1930s.

The financial collapse of the '70s had been brought on by a number of happenings, by the disturbances in Europe during and after the Franco-Prussian War, by the overbuilding of railroads in this country, and by the financial problems of the United States government left unsettled after the Civil War.

The panic followed immediately upon the failure of the great house of Jay Cooke & Co., the financiers of the Civil War and of western railroads, among them the Northern Pacific. A whole string of banks and brokerage houses followed Cooke into ruin, and before many weeks were past wholesalers and manufacturers all over the country were caving in.

All this in the fall of 1873. It was 1876 before the country was stirring in recovery, there was another financial panic in 1877, and not until 1879 did the country snap out of the depression.

Skipping the sad history of these hard years, let us look at the things which lifted us from the slough.

MOST of the writers of the history of this period give the credit for recovery chiefly to the re-establishment of the national currency on a sound gold basis in 1879.

The United States had been forced to issue a lot of government notes during the Civil War and circulate them as paper money. The country went off the gold standard. While prices continued to be quoted in the circulating paper money, business men found it hard to figure on the future, and until they could do that, any forward contracts or long-term investments were risky.

Congress decided in 1875 to make the paper currency redeemable in gold, but more than three years passed before it could be brought about. When it did take place, and when industry could look forward confidently to fairly stable values, business instantly recovered.

The revival was probably the fastest the country has ever gone through. It we could only get out of this depression as rapidly, business would be normal by next fall.

But those who give the credit for the recovery of 1879 to "sound money" often forget to explain why it was possible for the country to get back from a depreciated money to a gold currency at the old par. The circumstances which made this possible were the real reasons for the revival of 1879.

These circumstances were mainly connected with western agriculture.

The rapid expansion of farming in the west made possible a number of things. First, the resumption of railroad construction where it had

UP
DEPRESSION
NO. 1

After the hard times of the '70s came the lush '80s and a burst of gaiety. . . . Ellen Terry, the famous English actress, became an American favorite through her many appearances in the United States in these years.

left off in 1874. Next, the building of steel mills in the east to supply rails for the new lines. Next, the opening of a number of new industries to supply the western farmers. And so on, and on, and on, until everybody was working again.

For the country to return to the gold standard in 1879 it was necessary for it to have a large surplus of wealth to export, and in this way to obtain from Europe the gold that it needed to replenish the supply that had been withdrawn from the country. The exportable surplus of wealth this time was mainly agricultural products.

The agricultural surplus came about in two ways. The first was through the sudden increase in the number of farms and farmers. The second was the series of bountiful crops enjoyed by America, and the coincidence of poor crops in Europe or other parts of the world.

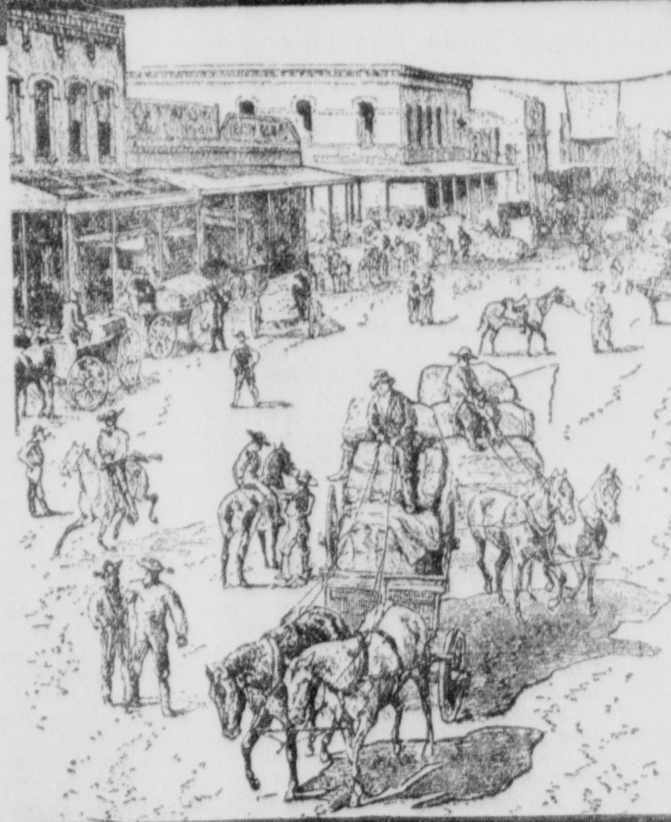

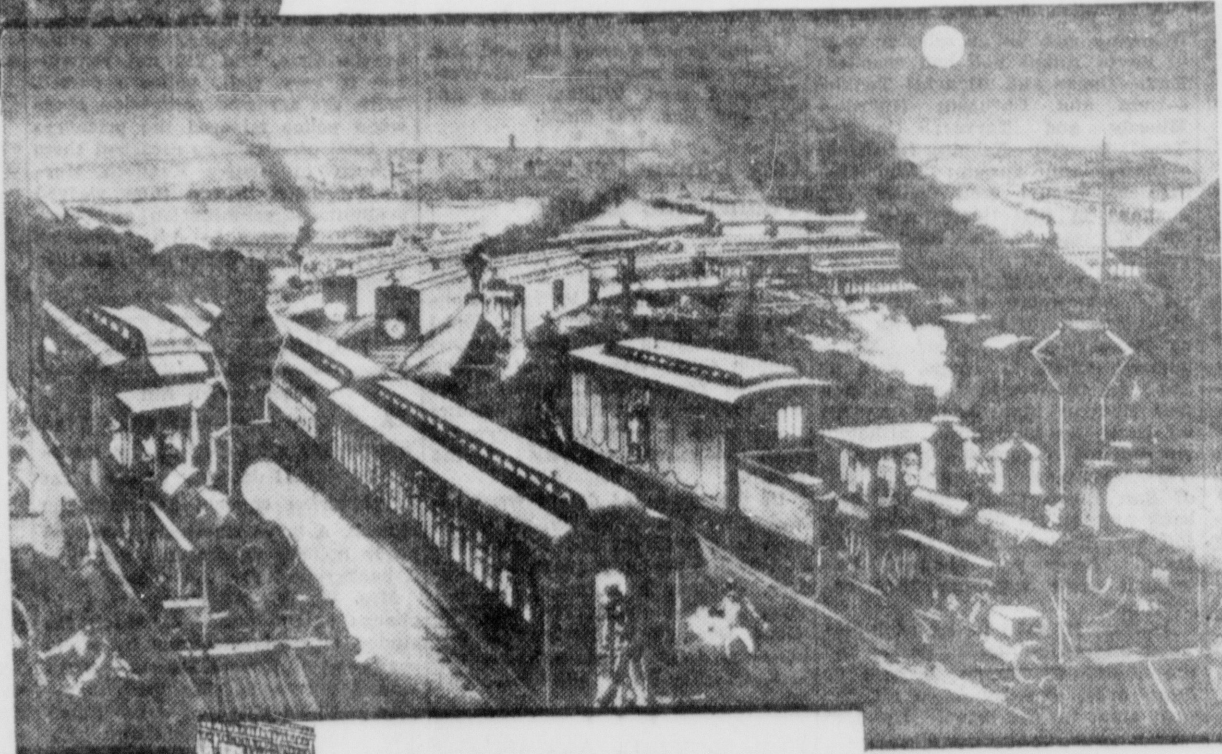

Millions of Americans can still remember the great westward migration of farmers after the Civil War. It was still possible, until 1900 or so, for a man who lost his job in the east to take his family and carve out a farm in the west or northwest. He could get land merely by living on it.

EVERY adult American knows something of the epic of those times, of the stream of European immigrants and eastern farmers' sons who spread over the western country by rail and wagon, of the sudden growth of towns like Topeka and Little Rock, of land rushes across the fenceless prairie, of the log houses and shanties and sod houses that became substantial farmsteads within a few years of patient toil.

Good times once more, as Harper's Weekly observed it, when busy street scenes in New York gave evidence that the country had snapped out of the long depression of the '70s.

Expansion of western farming led to the resumption of railroad and steel mill construction, and this, with the return to the gold standard, banished one of our three worst depressions

Railroad activity boomed as the panic ended . . . and here is an old picture depicting a busy railroad junction in the late '70s.

The liberal land policy of the government literally gave the land away. It gave the land to settlers, and it gave it to railroads, and the railroads sold the land to get money to build track, and with other money borrowed from Europe they carried the settlers in and their produce out.

Passenger trains were crowded to standing room with the Swedes going into the Dakota territory.

Land speculators operated on a tremendous scale, easterners staked and exploited new western towns, railroads advertised for homesteaders, and James J. Hill, America's greatest promoter, picked up whole communities and set them down along the Great Northern.

IN the hard years of the late '70s Hill was interesting Canadian and British capital in opening up the empire he foresaw in the Red River valley and westward. The frontier soil lay calling for the plow, and the migration which set in from Europe alarmed more than one ancient kingdom.

Still farther west, along the colorful foothills of the Cordilleras, roamed the authentic cowboys, driving their herds from the pampas of Texas northward with the season and the grass.

They sold their steers at the rail heads and the new stations dotted along the line, and long cattle trains moved to booming Chicago, which eventually delivered the meat to Europe.

Next to agricultural expansion, the chief reason American finance was able to recover so quickly from the long depression of the '70s was the increase in railroad construction and the effects this had upon manufacturing.

Too rapid a construction of railroads had brought on the panic of 1873, but the westward pressure of the frontier continued so steadily that before many years had passed the country was again in need of more railroads. Their construction was made possible by the reviving confidence of European investors in the American future, and by the liberal land grants from Congress.

THE first thing all these new lines called for was rails. The new rail mills in Chicago had felt the depression, but for them it was mild and brief. By 1879 Cook County (Chicago) had passed Carnegie's Pittsburgh in rolling Bessemer rails.

Though the hand of depression was heavy on the factories, all sorts of industries were gathering energy for the plunge forward as soon as the financial pressure was off. Every time a new quarter section of land was opened another plow was needed, and a factory in Ohio or Illinois turned it out.

Late in the depression a new flour milling process was imported from Europe. It was adapted to milling the hard winter wheat of the steppes. It provided an export market for the product of the new country along the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific.

The electrical industries were beginning to stir. Charles F. Brush invented the arc light during the hard times. The oil industry was already great and growing greater, with Rockefeller menacing all the independents. The year of the revival, the first of the pipe lines reached the Atlantic.

The reader of the history of recovery in 1879 is likely to conclude that if we only had an unfenced west once more we could climb out of depression very simply. Perhaps we could, though the presence of the west did not save the east from grievous suffering.

New industries helped revive us—the new rail mills, the new blast furnaces, the new glass factories, foundries and other industries. New industries would probably do it again, if they were in sight.

One of the chief reasons for the revival was the upswing in western farming. . . . This is an old picture showing cotton wagons in Dallas, Texas.

CONSIGNS TECHNOCRATS TO LAKE DISTRICT

Dr. William E. Wickenden, president of the Case School of Applied Science gives the "technocrats" credit for some effective measuring but says that they would benefit if they would stop studying charts for a while and would hear musical symphonies, visit the great art galleries and museums, have some sort of reverent meditation in church on Sundays and ramble over the Lake District of England. Yes, that is the way civilization accomplishes progression all right—by playing and not thinking too seriously of anything. Was or wasn't that the way slavery was abolished? Was or wasn't that the way religious freedom was won by the Pilgrims? We know it was not the way the French people won their republican form of government.

Among the lessons of history we read, surely, that progress has been made by the serious ones leading the way. Those who have become so imbued with an idea and so convinced of its truth and righteousness that they could think of little else have frequently managed to accomplish something, while those who have gone away to some vacation spot to wait for the world to come around to their way of thinking have not figured prominently in the list of the doers.

The program Dr. Wickenden maps out is what the rest of us have been doing for the last ten years while the technocrats have been studying. Now they can at least show us in what condition we are and how we got this way and suggest a way out. Most people are wishing they had money enough to go to a symphony, or ramble through the Lake District of England.

Maybe he is right when he implies that the technocrats are unbalanced in the order of their lives. Maybe they are all grinds and bores. We aren't privileged to know them personally so we can't pass judgment on that, but we do know they are giving us some impressive material, much more impressive than a thousand visitors to the Lake District of England could give us. The Lake District is rather an old story. We all know that it is beautiful and good for the soul, but right now the technocrats hold the stage of interest with their material.

Airplane pilots who think there are no thrills left should take a ride in a taxicab.

THE EVER-PRESENT DEBT PROBLEM

In spite of President Hoover's suggestion of immediacy in dealing with the international debts, there is very little hope that anything can be accomplished before the new administration takes over the government. The whole matter rode along for nearly eighteen months after the moratorium was declared. It will do no harm to wait a few months longer. There is no reason why matters may not be adjusted before the next installment of principal and interest payments comes due on June 15 next.

It is now revealed that the Lausanne agreement, by means of which Germany's reparations were scaled down to some $700,000,000, from the original amount fixed in 1920, $31,000,000,000, was conditioned upon the expectation that the United States government would revise the debts owed by the allied nations to this country. In his speech to Parliament on the debts, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the British cabinet, declared that the Lausanne agreement was made with the knowledge and the approval of the United States. He said, "The United States Government indicated to the British ambassador that if the European powers devised a reasonable reparation settlement, this would be the best approach with a view to revision of the war debts due to the United States."

The approval of the Lausanne agreement is being urged as a reason for debt revision. As Walter Lippman says in a recent syndicated editorial, the whole matter of debts and reparations has been bungled from the very beginning. The time has now come to settle the question once and for all. And the problem can be settled only by facing realities, and by the recognition of the fact that so long as it remains in suspense, the return to normal in the world of commerce and industry will be delayed.

An insurance company suggests, "The next fire may be yours." Trying to cheer up everybody?

DEMOCRATS DIFFERING

If the Democrats do not look out, there will be such a division, before the inauguration, in the ranks of Congress, that they won't get together to carry on governmental functions in anything like an effective way.

It has been suggested by some that President-elect Roosevelt would have done well to have made a trip to Europe during these months. President Hoover, it will be recalled, went to South America just after election. Certainly the President-elect should go somewhere, and get away from the bickering and political discussions that are tending to divide, even before he takes the reins of office.

If this country ever needed unity, it needs it now, and there will be little patience among the folks if the political party representatives, who were selected with such unanimity, fall out among themselves over questions of legislation and patronage, etc.

Again, the evidences are strong of the need of the amendment enabling a newly elected President and Congress to be ushered in at once. This condition insures the approval of this amendment, if there were any doubt before.

BUY-AMERICAN PLAN GETS UNDER WAY

The campaign for "buying American" is under way, and undoubtedly some foreign merchants and nations will feel the effects of it immediately. We note that an importer of electric light bulbs in Philadelphia declared yesterday that he was about to give an order for a million Japanese bulbs, but changed his mind because of the campaign.

Unfortunately, this is a game that the people on both sides of the Atlantic and Pacific can join in playing, and it will be played to the limit, for it is easier to start such a thing than it is to stop it. America has been selling a surplus in many things to foreign countries. We have been endeavoring to protect ourselves by a tariff wall, and to some extent we have done it. Other nations have been following suit, and it is the natural thing to note the competition that is around us, and in self-protection, determine that we will "buy American."

We are afraid that this program will not be a serious solution, and may militate against us in the end.

An English runner recently won a race while suffering from a toothache. Perhaps he was on his way to the dentist.

JOHN MASEFIELD LEAVES OXFORD

Peaceful, quiet old Oxford of the long twilights and picturesque spires has become intolerable, because of its noise, to John Masefield. And it isn't because of the younger generation of students, either. It is because of an aeroplane landing field so near his home that the noise of the ascending and descending planes has forced him to give up the home which he had previously enjoyed.

When he departed recently on a lecture tour of the United States it became known that when he returns it will be to a new home in Pinbury Village between Stroud and Cirencester.

At that, Oxford can probably get along better without Masefield than without the aeroplanes. Or rather it is a case of actually eating the cake and having it too for they can still enjoy Masefield from the distance of Pinbury Village but it would be more difficult to benefit from the planes at that distance.

This Changing World

Christian Science Monitor

Passengers on a street car in a large city recently were amused at the interested enthusiasm of a child, a girl about eight years old, who, it developed, just then was taking her first trolley ride.

Of the conductor and of her mother who accompanied her the child asked a rapid succession of questions about the tram and its operation. She was as interested in that street car as she would have been in a new doll or a new toy.

When she left the car, one of the passengers learned from the conductor that the mother had remarked that the little girl never had been on a street car before simply because the family always uses automotive transportation; either their own motorcar, a taxicab, a bus, or an airplane.

The incident throws a revealing spotlight upon a changing world, and opens up a wide field for speculation.

To an older person it seems incredible, at first, that even a young city child should never have ridden in a street car. And yet, upon second thought, it is quite apparent that there must be any number of children who are acquainted with this familiar medium of transport only by seeing it from the outside.

Think, too, then, for example, how many young persons there are who cannot picture a world without a radio, without electric refrigeration, without an oil-burning furnace, without an air mail, much less without telephones, electric lights and skyscrapers.

It is true indeed to say that the world moves rapidly these days. But few realize just how quickly it does change until a child, with disarming naivete, shows how vast are the differences which a few years bring.

Peering Into Space

Philadelphia Public Ledger

Astronomers are welcoming a new device, invented by Dr. Joel Stebbins, of the University of Wisconsin, intended to lengthen the range of the telescope in its exploration of space. It is described as a new type of thermionic tube, used for measuring the brightness and color of stars and galaxies. Its effect, therefore, is not to multiply the number of stars to be seen at the telescope end, but to permit a more accurate interpretation of what is seen there.

It is largely by their color and brilliance that the size, mass and distance of stars and systems of stars are calculated. Even the speed of their movement through space is estimated from changes in the spectroscopic analysis of light which comes from them. Wide differences of opinion among astronomers on these points are based on divergent estimates of the effect of distance and interstellar matter on the light waves which come from the stars.

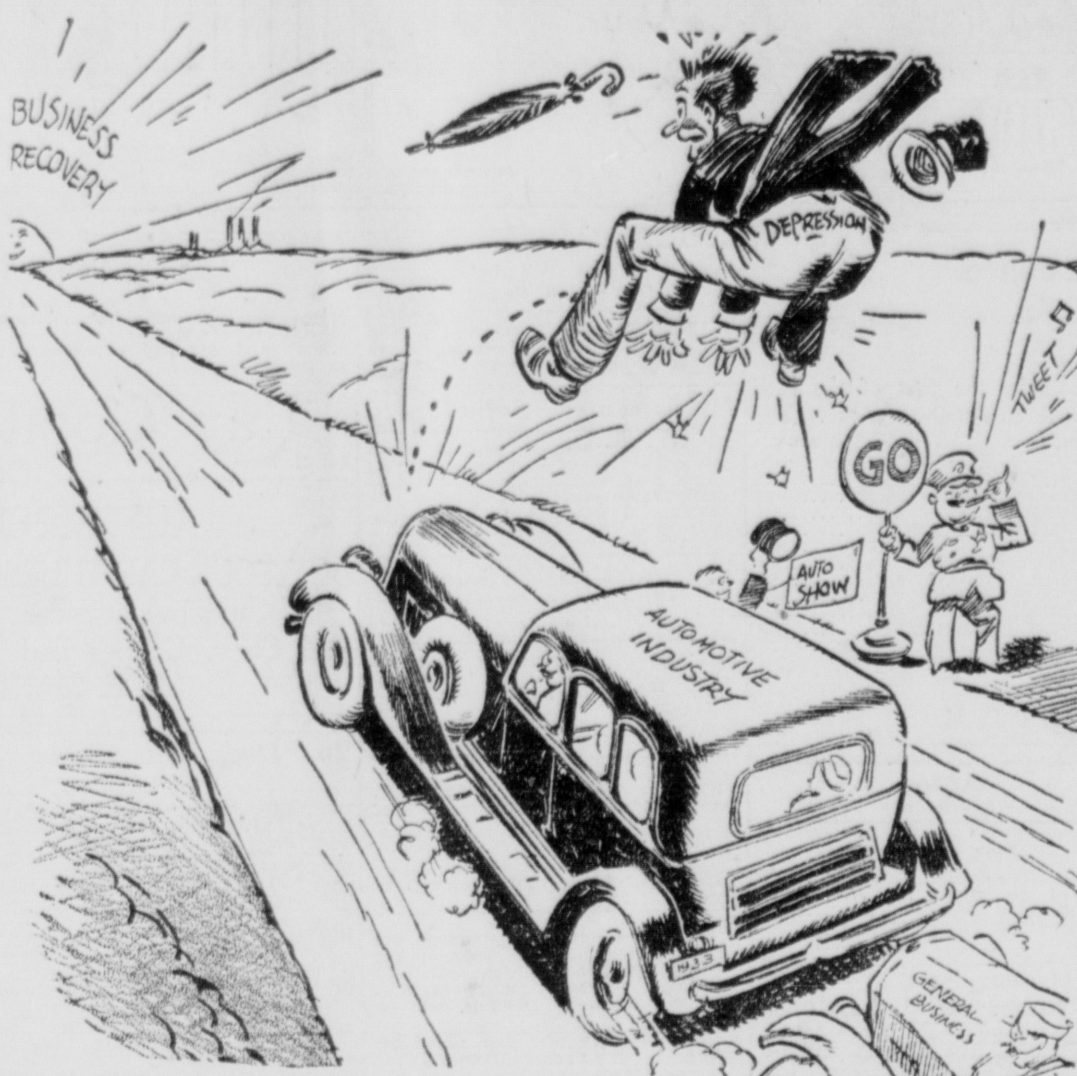

The world's largest telescope can only display a distant star as a point of light, with no measurable dimensions. One star is believed to be bigger or hotter or heavier than another only because it is brighter or has another color than its neighbor in space. It is immensely important, therefore, that the message of the starlight be accurately read. The new device does not, strictly speaking, lengthen the range of the astronomer's vision, as would a larger and finer mirror to gather the light from the sky and bring the picture of the heavens to the observer's eye. But it is expected to extend considerably the effectiveness of astronomical interpretation of what the stars are telling us.

Another Plan

Oakland Tribune

Back in Newark, New Jersey, there is a woman who has a plan to remove within six months the surplus of food crops and start the growers back on the way to prosperity. It is absurdly simple. All that is needed, and it is Miss Dorothy Fuldeheim speaking, is for the women of the land to take a solemn pledge each to increase her weight by ten pounds and in six months. There are some, of course, who could do this and perhaps look the better, but Mrs. Fuldeheim surely cannot believe that all of the women will be willing to enter the crusade or that, if they did, the resultant protest would make the demands of farm relief seem small in comparison.

Ready To Lead The Big Parade

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

LINES BY AN URBANITE

I do not need to dwell in town
Where rent and food are dear;
I easily might settle down
A hundred miles from here.
Where orchards bloom across the way—
Where Nature's heart is closer,
And it is easier to pay
The butcher and the grocer.

What sense is there in ceaseless strife
And never ending toil?
When one might lead a placid life
Upon the fruitful soil?
Why struggle for one's daily bread,
Worn out with tedious labors,
When I might live at peace, instead,
Among congenial neighbors?

The city tumult numbs the brain;
The unremitting grind
And never ending stress and strain
Destroy all peace of mind;
But yonder, where the swallows soar
And wrens and robins flutter,
This mundane life may mean far more
Than merely bread and butter.

I've wandered over rural ways
Along clear running streams,
I've spent content and happy days
In blissful waking dreams;
The tinkling music of a rill
Has held my soul in fetter;
I like the countryside, but still,
I like the city better.

FRED FEARNOT AND THE KING'S EGG
A Play
Scene: Dining room in the royal castle.

Fred Fearnot: It was darn nice of the king to invite me to breakfast as a reward for saving his dawner from going down for the 3rd time while she was drowning.

Princess: Well, holy smokes, what's that awful smell? Holy smokes it's my egg. Well I better not say anything about it. If I accused one of the royal eggs of being bad the king might be so mad he might have my head chopped off to teach me a lesson. The only trouble is, the whole royal family seems to be smelling it.

King: Well, do you smell what I smell, Queen?

Queen: I'm sorry to say I do. It must be somebody's egg but it's not mine. Mine's perfect.

King: It's a good thing for the royal hen it's not mine.

Princess: Mine's not gilly. How's your egg, Mr. Fearnot?

Fred Fearnot: Well, it's fair. King: Fair? Nothing fair could smell like that.

Fred Fearnot: Well I admit it could be better.

Queen: It couldn't be worse if it's that egg that's doing all that smelling.

Fred Fearnot: That's what I mean. It couldn't be worse.

King: Where's the royal butler, tell him to take it away and keep it away.

Princess: He's unconscious under the table. He couldn't stand it any longer and fainted.

King: Well what do you say if we all go out on the lawn and play croquet till lunch time?

Queen, Princess and Fred Fearnot: Okay, King.

In the Long Ago

From The Register Files
14 Years Ago Today

DECEMBER 29, 1918

The Christmas season had been especially happy in three Orange county homes, those of Mrs. Nellie Munger, El Toro; C. F. Kneen, Santa Ana, and the L. E. Millers of Anaheim, all of whom had received letters stating their sons, Horace Munger, William Kneen and Edwin Miller, were safe and unharmed after the World war.

The three young men out of the 1700 from Orange county in army and navy service, were said to have been fittest under fire of any other Orange county soldiers.

They were with the 117th Engineers of the famous fighting Rainbow Division.

Harold Segerstrom returned to Harvard Military school after having spent the holidays at his home, Willow Tree Farm, and enjoyed the family reunion on Christmas day.

The Chamber of Commerce had on display a fine bunch of ripe blackberries, grown by J. P. Gutzweiler and left with his midwinter compliments, at the office.

With less than 60 quarantined cases of flu in the city, Dr. J. I. Clark, city health officer, declared that the epidemic seemed to have run its course and that the schools would re-open on Monday, January 6. The re-opening was to include high school, junior college and night school.

Thoughts On Modern Life

WAR DEBTS AND TAXPAYERS

I have been deluged with letters and inquiries growing out of the statements I have made in these articles on war debts.

These letters indicate a deep-seated opinion the country over that any serious reduction or wholesale cancellation of the war debts would literally swamp the American taxpayer with an unbearable load of new taxes when he is already bending under the existing burden.

May I try to make clear again that I have not and do not now recommend the out-and-out cancellation of all war debts. It may prove necessary. I do not speak dogmatically on this because I do not have the first-hand contact with all the facts that any man should have before he has any right to a dogmatic opinion.

My only purpose in what I have written about war debts is to smash the delusion that any reconsideration of these debts is bound to break the back of the American taxpayer.

Here are some figures that speak pointedly:
In 1929 the total income of the American people was approximately $85,200,000,000.

In 1932 that income, according to the best estimate to which I have access, will not exceed $37,500,000,000.

This $37,500,000,000 income is in terms of dollars; in terms of goods the dollar will buy at present price levels, the income might be put at $56,200,000,000, which is, I think, a fairer estimate than the $46,000,000,000 estimated by many taxpayers' alliances recently.

This means that, compared with 1929, we are losing $29,000,000,000 a year in income.

Compared with this loss, due in no small part to the virtual disappearance of world trade with the nations in debt to us, the loss from complete cancellation of debts would be about $280,000,000 a year.

In 1929, the per capita income in the United States was $704; in 1932 this per capita income, in terms of dollars, is down to $300, and, in terms of goods the dollar will buy, is down to $450.

Putting next year's federal expenditures at $3,300,000,000, the per capita share of this will be $26.40. With the war debts paid, this $26.40 could be cut $2.24.

The question of reduction or cancellation of war debts comes down to this: Would such revision or wiping out all around start us back on the road to world-wide economic recovery? If it will, that is one thing. If it will not, that is quite another thing.

If clearing the world of war debts could bring us back to prosperity as of 1929, the average American would have $704 income instead of $450, which means he would make $254 with which to pay $2.24 more taxes.

I am not silly enough to say that wiping out the war debts would automatically and alone restore prosperity. The question is how much would it help. How much of that lost $254 could be recaptured? Everything regained through economic recovery about $2.24 per capita would be clear gain.

THE EMBARRASSING QUESTION

Of course there ought to be no embarrassing questions. Not that the question ought not to come, but that the embarrassing ought not to appear. What question is there that a child can ask that ought to embarrass us? None.

B. The fact remains that there are plenty and we have to be prepared to meet them gracefully. The embarrassing question usually comes when there is company. That is what makes it embarrassing. If nobody was about to hear what the child said, and what you said in reply, you would not feel at all shy. It is the audience that counts. Just the same that audience is going to count and there is no way out save to train the child not to ask his questions at the dinner table, or in the presence of visitors. Ask him to save them up until you can give him your full attention. Tell him that it is not polite to talk about things that interest only himself. And know that he will ask just the same.

When he pops his question into the quiet of the room school yourself an answer calmly. "Quite so, Bobbie. No doubt your friend is right. I'll have to think about it and talk it over with you by and by. Just now would you mind going out to tell Minnie that I would like her to give you a glass of water for me."

If you have trained him right the tone of your voice will persuade him to go after that glass of water, and to discontinue his pursuit of knowledge, or his airing of it, for the present.

Don't feel called upon to apologize to the guests. They are all old enough to know what to expect of children. Perhaps some of them are wise enough to know that children are not sophisticated people and that ordinary facts of life are dramatically interesting to them. If they are not, they ought to be. Let them learn now and go right on with the party.

Don't forget your promise to talk the matter over. The child who asks the embarrassing question in public has indicated that his mind is so full of the importance of it that he feels it is big enough to make him as big as the grownups, if he can just make it clear to them that he is in the know too.

Don't punish a child for asking an embarrassing question before guests. It is usually your fault.

And one thing more. If gossip about relatives and the neighbors is not passed along in the presence of children they will not embarrass you by repeating it, or intruding a little of their own, at inopportune moments. You can head off most of the embarrassing moments you are threatened with by teaching the children how and what and when beforetime. It ought to be impossible for a child to embarrass us. When he does we know we are at fault, not he.
